MINUTES

I. Call to Order and Welcome from Host

The Chair called the meeting to order at 10:00 a.m. The Council and public was welcomed by Meagan Daine, managing director of the Lankershim Arts Center and its resident theatre company The Road Theatre, which also provides administrative support for the Arts Center. Daine said that the building was built circa 1939 as a Department of Water & Power Building, and later renovated and transformed into an arts center by the Department of Cultural Affairs of the City of Los Angeles. It is now a registered cultural landmark.

She also noted that the first NOHO (North of Hollywood) "Arts Walk" was the previous evening, and marks a first of many for this culturally rich area of greater Los Angeles.

Nancy Bianconi, President of the NoHo Arts District board, welcomed the Council as well, and gave the members an overview of the area. She noted that within one mile down Lankershim Blvd and neighboring side streets there are 27 live theaters, seven dance studios, 30 recording studios, and 30 acting studios and training facilities. The area has grown to be a destination spot in the greater LA area.

II. Roll Call and Establishment of a Quorum

Barber takes the roll at 10:04 a.m. and a quorum is established. (Baza arrived at 10:06; Steinhauser arrived at 10:13.)

Baza was acknowledged as a recent appointee by the Chair. Baza briefly thanked the Council and noted he was looking forward to working on the Council.

III. ACTION ITEM: Minutes of meeting on January 22, 2016

Barber distributed a corrected version of the draft minutes from the January 22, 2016, meeting to the Council. The Council reviewed the corrections.

- Beasley moved to approve them as amended
- Gallegos seconded
- Beasley, Gallegos, Harris, Lindo, McGuinness and Wyman approved, with Baza abstaining and Steinhauser not present during the vote.

IV. Chair Report

Harris discussed aspects of the written Chair's Report provided to Council at the meeting and discussed additional items of interest – noting that based on the recently released Otis Report on the Creative Economy of California 2015 that there was an increase in the number of people involved in California's creative economy. He also commented that as the Chair of the thought leadership subcommittee, he would like the Council and staff to consider how to further the expertise and importance of the arts in California.

V. Director's Report

Watson informed the Council that newly announced Council member Juan Devis, the VP of Content Development and Production at KCET Link, also sits on the advisory committee for the LA County Cultural Equity and Inclusion Initiative. Devis is a Senate appointee and will start in June, said Watson.

Watson gave an update to the Council on SB 916 by Senator Ben Allen that would restore the Dance and Theater credentials for K-12, noting that Annette Bening testified in the state Senate the previous month about the importance of the bill. Watson said he would inform the Council about the status of the legislation as it makes its way through the legislative process, and that various education credentialing institutions – specifically California State University – are in a position to fulfill the credential if the legislation becomes law.

Watson noted that newly announced Council member Devis has presented remarks the previous year on the Otis Report at the Sacramento information legislative hearing in the capitol announcing the report's finding, and that KCET had been a media partner through a series of multi-media stories about the impact of the Creative Economy. This year's Otis Report provides a series of regional snapshots that examine the importance of the creative economy on different parts of the state – a new feature for the annual study.

Watson noted in the research findings and proposed message framework to build public will for Arts and Culture coordinated by ArtsMidwest with the Metropolitan Group, San Diego was cited as one of the communities, with specific leadership by the City of San Diego Commission for Arts and Culture, which Baza chairs. Baza said that San Diego is very enthusiastic about the program and his fellow commissioners are very interested.

Steinhauser noted when she served as an advisor with the investigation by ArtsMidwest and the Metropolitan Group, a number of projects were investigated. She noted that when it comes to the question of access to arts, the investigation explored why people felt outside the arts world, and suggested a number of changes to the framing of the identity of the arts to include family, relationships, self-health, self-expression and others. Steinhauser noted that the City of San Jose was a great partner for this investigation under the leadership of Kerry Adams Hapner, the Director of Cultural Affairs and the Deputy Director of Economic Development. Steinhauser added that she hoped to see more information about public will in the agency's eNewsletter, the California ArtBeat.

Watson also welcomed Kiburi as the new agency deputy director as one of the team, saying that she is taking in information about the agency like a sponge, and that she has deep experience in state government.

Beasley asked if Senator Allen had any co-authors for SB 916, and Watson noted that Senators Fuller and Hertzberg were co-authors, as well as others. Watson said he would notify the Council of others as they join as co-authors.

VI. Introduction of Assemblyman Nazarian and Honoring of Outgoing Council member Michael Alexander

Watson introduced Assemblyman Adrin Nazarian, noting that the Council meeting was taking place in the Assemblyman's district. Watson noted that Assemblyman Nazarian has been a strong supporter of the arts and creative economy in his years in the Legislature.

Assemblyman Nazarian welcomed the Council and guests to his home district, which he characterized as the birthplace of creative ingenuity during the explosion of economic activity from the early growth of the film era. The affordable flatlands in the Los Angeles area where workers in the entertainment industry lived is now the North Hollywood area location of the Council meeting. The neighborhoods and cities nearby now consist of multiple generations of families – the children and grandchildren of the first creative workers in the region, said Nazarian. The Assemblyman said that in his observations from representing the area, he and others sometimes take for granted the importance of the arts and not invest in something that's already economically strong, but that he is trying to change the conversation and encourage investment and nurturing of what Californians are good at in the arts and creative economy. Assemblyman Nazarian noted that the 46th Assembly District that he represents includes the area on Magnolia known locally as Theatre Row.

Nazarian noted that in his role on the Assembly Budget Committee over the years, specifically as Chair of Subcommittee 4 (General Government), he has been fortunate enough to witness and support the expansion of the California Arts Council's General Fund allocation from $1 million to $7 million. He noted that it's important for those who support investment in the arts to remain vigilant about its importance. He added that he has been talking to other legislative colleagues about how important arts activities, investment and support are not just in the urban areas, but in rural areas as well. He reminded the Council that in the Los Angeles area there is a great deal of support and public/private partnership opportunity, but that there is investment in the arts statewide, especially when examining a program like the recently established Cultural Districts Program, approved by the Legislature and Governor in 2015.

Assemblyman Nazarian acknowledged the dedication and service of former Arts Council member Michael Alexander, noting that he met Alexander previously when the Assemblyman was a lead staffer for former Assemblyman Paul Krekorian. Alexander, as the executive director of Grand Performances, brought free performing arts from various multi-cultural backgrounds to the people who live and work in downtown Los Angeles, enriching the lives of local Angelinos. Nazarian also acknowledged the dozen of years Alexander was on the Council, and presented legislative acknowledgements to Alexander, as well as outgoing Council member Steinhauser.

Watson acknowledged Assemblyman Nazarian for his longtime support of the arts in California, including through the bill his first year in office that would have increased the General Fund investment in the arts to $75 million. While the bill did not make it through the legislative process, Assemblyman Nazarian certainly received positive attention from the arts community.

Alexander noted that the arts as a field have to create a network of services and support. The sciences have support services and advocacy, and the arts have support services from nonprofit resource groups. But there's a need for an expansion of these kinds of services, noted Alexander. California is very diverse, and in his experience at Grant Performances, he notes that every socio-economic class wants the arts in their lives.

Alexander, the previous Assembly appointee to the Council, acknowledged Larry Baza the current Assembly appointee and encouraged him to continue to push for financial and other support for the arts field, as well as recognition that the arts field deserves. He finished his remarks by stating that he was honored to work with the Council and to meet everyone he encountered in the dozen years he served. He singled out Steinhauser and her eight years on the Council.

Attendees enjoyed a special performance in honor of Alexander, given by Nevenka, a Los Angeles-based women's folk chorus performing songs from Eastern Europe.

Steinhauser noted that she and Alexander were the last of the cohort that worked through the extra lean years of funding for the California Arts Council. Steinhauser added that creating a strong network of local arts agencies through the State-Local Partnership Program is vital for the state, and also acknowledged Wyman for her long history of support for the arts and participation in arts policy.

Wyman acknowledged both Steinhauser and Alexander, she was especially impressed by the success of Grand Performances and the organization's free performances in downtown Los Angeles, saying that Grand Performances under Alexander's leadership filled a need in the urban city, and the organization did so in a way that was meaningful and impactful. On a final note, Alexander reminded the Council to utilize the support of arts educators as well as professional artists and groups in their advice to policymakers.

VII. Program Panel Recommendations Approval Process

Arts Council staff directed the Council members to the tabs in their books with the recommendation by the peer-review panels for funding in State and Regional Networks, JUMP StArts, and Artists Activating Communities (Tabs 4, 5, and 6). Kiburi asked the Council members to review for conflicts of interest or the appearance of conflicts of interest with any of the organizations in the documents. Baza and Steinhauser noted one conflict each for the Artist Activating Communities program recommendations. Harris asked if the Council members needed to notify staff if the organization was not recommended for funding, and Watson asked that the Council acknowledge those as well.

Wyman asked if staff had reviewed and determined conflicts ahead of time as in previous meetings, and Watson replied that staff flag previously known conflicts for their Council members when they are aware of them, but the issue must be brought forward prior to every funding vote. Gilbride noted that Council members may be present during general discussion of a program, but cannot be present if they have a conflict and those specific organizations are discussed. Wyman wanted confirmation that general discussion was allowed, and Watson noted that the Arts Council staff would review the codes regarding general discussion of programs prior to a Council vote for approval of funding recommendations.

Beasley suggested that Council members provide a list of conflicts to staff ahead of time for staff to review against panel recommendations, and Watson welcomed the suggestion to streamline the process, while acknowledging that new conflicts could arise at anytime, and thus a check will always be performed prior to Council items pertaining to grant allocation votes.

VIII. Approval of Artists Activating Communities (AAC) Peer-Panel Review Recommendations

Gilbride and the AAC peer-review panel chair, curator Jill Moniz, gave an overview of the process and recommendations. Gilbride noted that the correct county listing in the recommendation for Brava Women for the Arts is San Francisco County (the listing cites "United States"). Moniz noted that the AAC review panel was a very rigorous panel that reviewed each application carefully, and that the members of the review panel participated in much discussion and debate over each application. Moniz noted that the members of the panel were very experienced and thoughtful.

She added that the applications were for strong artist-based projects that fulfilled a need for communities, including immigrant communities, urban areas crowded out because of the cost of living (San Francisco especially), proposals that bridged the past to contemporary communities, especially concerning ethnic groups and communities of color. She explained that the panel members reviewed the proposals for content and strength of projects, not minor non-relevant details like grammar mistakes or misspellings.

Harris noted that this particular program harkens back to the Arts Council's and other funding organizations' history in the 1970s of "Arts in Unusual Places." Moniz said that the applicants have some amazing ideas about how to engage communities in art-making and have a significant positive impact. There were many strong applicants, said Moniz.

Gilbride noted that the AAC program for FY 2015-16 had $500,000 allocated as a modest and typical start for a new program. Because of the large number of applications and limited funding, the peer-review panel recommendations are for applications receiving an "8" or above out of a scale of 1 to 10. Gilbride also noted that successful applications had strengths in both artist-driven projects and community activities and engagement.

Wyman asked if there was a minimum requirement for length of time for an applicant to be in business, and Gilbride responded that it was two years. Wyman asked if the Council members could move to approve other applicants who scored below an 8. Watson advised against doing so. Wyman asked if it was allowed, and Watson noted that the peer-review panel process is based on the historical and transparent process established by the NEA over forty years previous. Wyman asked about the purpose of the Council in that case, and Harris noted that if the Council were to do so, there would need to be a change in the process and the Council members would need to be part of the peer review and read all the applications as part of a fair and transparent process. Given the Council's role in programmatic oversight, Gilbride noted that the Council and the Programs Committee in particular, fulfilled this role by developing the guidelines for each program, determining the funding allocations of each program, and reaching out to potential panelists.

Moniz explained that the peer-review panel members analyzed the applications in great detail and made their recommendations based on dozens of hours of review and discussion. Gilbride offered to provide notes from the peer-review panel process to Council members who were interested. Gilbride also reminded the Council that the peer-review panel for AAC was examining proposals for projects. There were many excellent organizations who submitted applications, but their projects didn't suit the criteria of both being artist-driven and community-engagement activities.

Gilbride also noted that with the limitations on the funding many quality applications receiving below an 8 were not funded. Harris wondered if the Council could hypothetically vote to extend fundable applications below the "8" ranking -- if there were funds available. Gilbride reminded the Council that the enthusiasm from the public through the large number of high-quality applications should be viewed as a good thing for a pilot, indicating high interest and need that can influence future funding decisions. Gilbride also noted that the amount requested for funding this program through the ranking of "8" is $559,968, with staff recommending an allocation of the amount above $500,000 to come from unused funds slated for the JUMP StArts program.

Wyman said that she would have liked more information on the applicants and the reasoning for the recommendations. Lindo noted that as a Council member she didn't want to read all the applications unless she was officially a member of the peer-review panel, but did ask that the summaries of the applications be enhanced, noting that some of the summaries did not make it clear how the projects were artist-driven.

Moniz acknowledged Lindo's observation, and added that for very small organizations, individuals that may seem to be administrative or executive staff are the artists. The panelists looked at the impact of the project, not the internal staff structure of the organizations, she said. She also noted that the panelists, as part of the fair and transparent process, had to rely on the information in the application and not from outside knowledge or assumptions.

McGuinness said that while the summaries appeared brief, as a Council member she trusts the panelists' review and recommendations.

Gallegos asked how many of the applicants were new to the Arts Council, and Gilbride said she would investigate. Gilbride added that many of the applications included artists new to the Arts Council. Gallegos commented on the cultural and economic diversity of the panel. Moniz noted that reviewing some of the applications was difficult – that they saw communities with a deep need for AAC-type projects, but poorly formulated applications and not-well-thought out projects. Some of the applicants did not seem to understand the process, said Moniz, and the panel members noted the overall need for technical support and grant-writing training for the organizations and communities with the greatest need for AAC and other similar programming.

Harris asked if the funding for the program could be augmented at the next Council meeting; Gilbride noted that the scheduling would not match up against the application, as many of the projects would or should have started by the Council meeting in June. Gilbride noted that the panel members for the peer review were from very diverse backgrounds and communities.

Gallegos said that she didn't find the formatting of the report to be helpful in understanding the projects because the artists from each AAC application were not easily identifiable until she read the narrative summaries, and she asked that next time the staff reports identify the artists more easily in the staff report.

Wyman added that she needed more time to review the reports and staff recommendations before the Council meeting.

McGuinness asked if staff are available in the office if applicants have questions; Watson said yes, but added that additional outreach to the field is important and will be enhanced and increased as the agency builds up on staff.

Harris recommended that the Programs Committee analyze the pattern of information provided to Council.

Beasley said that as Council members, they should honor the peer-review panel process, with its long history of openness and transparency, and added that while it's not possible to change the rankings of a peer-panel review, it may be a worthwhile investment of time and resources to discuss and analyze with the Programs Committee and staff on how to improve the process.

ACTION ITEM: Steinhauser moved to approve the staff recommendation to fund 45 of the AAC applicants ranked 8 and above for artist-driven projects in a community setting except for organizations Piece by Piece and Art Produce, for a total of $540,868. Baza seconded. The motion passed unanimously.

Steinhauser stepped out.

ACTION ITEM: Gallegos moved to approve AAC applicant Piece by Piece for $13,500. Lindo seconded, and the motion passed with aye votes from Baza, Beasley, Gallegos, Harris, Lindo, McGuinness, and Wyman. Steinhauser cast no vote and did not participate in conversation concerning this action item.

Steinhauser returned to the meeting; Baza stepped out.

ACTION ITEM: Steinhauser moved to approve AAC application Art Produce for $5,600. McGuinness seconded, and the motion passed with aye votes from Beasley, Gallegos, Harris, Lindo, McGuinness, Steinhauser and Wyman. Baza cast no vote and did not participate in conversation concerning this action item.

IX. Approval of Juveniles Utilizing Massive Potential Starting with Arts (JUMP StArts) Peer-Panel Review Recommendations

Gilbride introduced the agency's Arts Education Program Specialist Josy Miller and JUMP StArts panel chair Yago Cura. Gilbride also directed the Council to a correction in the funding recommendations listing for Each One Reach One, as the organization resides in San Francisco County (the listing cites "USA"). Gilbride also noted the number of applicants to this program in San Diego and Los Angeles counties, indicating there may be a strong interest in rehabilitative arts programming in these parts of the state.

Cura noted that the work involved in the JUMP StArts programming – providing immersive arts programming to juvenile offenders – is difficult work. The individuals who sat on the peer-review panel came from different backgrounds, but there was consensus among the panelists about quality applications that could be fulfilled. Gilbride noted that in watching the panel, it became apparent what a huge need there was in the state for juvenile rehabilitative arts programming. She added that the panelists gave good recommendations on how to make the program and application stronger.

Watson noted that with the publicity surrounding the Arts Council's partnership with the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR), staff has been asked why the agency hasn't done more work addressing this need earlier. Watson said that he directs those who pose the questions to programs like Artists in Schools and JUMP StArts.

Harris said that he had worked in a juvenile work camp and found the process and procedures in an incarceration setting to be a complicated impediment to providing the arts services at times. Cura agreed, noting that the purpose and principal focus of law enforcement and custody officials is the safety and security of staff and the wards or inmates, while the purpose and principal focus of the arts providers is the arts programming. Having these two groups with divergent focuses can be complicated, said Cura. The JUMP StArts panelists kept these facts in mind when reviewing the applications, he said, looking for proposals that were realistic.

Gallegos asked if there was an evaluation – survey or study -- in place for JUMP StArts, as well as other programming, as well as an analysis of the backgrounds of the artist providing services. Watson noted that for the Arts-in-Corrections (AIC) partnership, the agency is contracting for research with a team of noted evaluators, including a California expert on evidence-based rehabilitative programs. Barber gave a brief overview of the research goals for AIC. McGuinness added that based on the various videos and media reports provided to Council about AIC, the program appears to have a strong positive impact.

Gilbride noted that there is an identified need for assessment tools and evaluation in arts-in-juvenile justice. Cura noted that many of the applicants included surveys and other evaluation tools to assess their programming. Beasley commented that she attended an arts program at a Los Angeles County juvenile camp provided by a longtime Arts Council grantee, and learned how much the arts can positively impact the wards and give them hope and a positive direction.

Wyman asked what the proportion of arts services being provided to women versus men in the AIC program. Barber said she would research the issue. Gilbride noted that many of the JUMP StArts applicants serve girls too.

Gallegos asked if the visual artwork created by the JUMP StArts juveniles or performances are available, as the photos and media stories on AIC are, to provide support for the program and others of a similar nature. Gilbride noted that the program applications includes a documentation section and requirement, but there are very strict rules protecting the identity of minors, as well as the need to create a safe place and atmosphere for the juveniles. Cura added that local law enforcement appears to be starting to see the benefit of arts programming for juveniles, which can lead to attitude changes.

ACTION ITEM: Gallegos moved that the Council approve the panel recommendations to fund 27 JUMP StArts applicants ranking 5 and above for arts education services in juvenile justice settings in California for $603,071. Lindo seconded, and the motion passed unanimously.

Gilbride drew the Council's attention to the second staff recommendation for this program of a $20,000 allocation for an evaluation of the first three years of the JUMP StArts program. Harris asked if the evaluation funds were to go to the grantees, and Gilbride said that the funding would be for a contract with professional evaluators through the public Request-for-Proposal process.

ACTION ITEM: Beasley moved that the Council approve the staff recommendation of a $20,000 allocation for an evaluation of the first three years of the JUMP StArts program. McGuinness seconded, and the motion passed unanimously.

Wyman said she appreciated the work that is done at these juvenile incarceration and rehabilitative facilities, saying that it was hard work. She noted that she had experience with a juvenile boys' camp years ago when her daughter worked at one, and told a humorous story about how the camp staff and wards played a trick on her when she came to visit. That the staff and the juveniles were able to coordinate in a safe manner to play a practical joke impressed the importance of communication and interaction – exactly where the arts can play a role.

X. Approval of Artists Statewide and Regional Networks Peer-Panel Review Recommendations

Gilbride introduced Arts and Special Project Associate John Seto to provide the Council with information about the peer-review panel for the Statewide and Regional Networks (SRN) program. Seto noted that while the two previous programs were project based, SRN provides general support for arts service organizations that provide services statewide or on a regional basis. He also noted that the requirements for Regional Network organizations were changed to allow more organizations to be eligible. Twenty-nine organizations applied, and the panel recommended funding 28. The one not recommended for funding did not meet the criteria of a service organization, said Seto.

Seto introduced Joe Smoke of the City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs who served as the panel chair for the SRN peer-review panel. Smoke explained that the panel consisted of five experts from diverse backgrounds in terms of age, arts expertise, location in California, rural versus urban, etc. Smoke noted that the SRN panel addresses the very important category of building of the arts infrastructure throughout the state. Smoke added that this was a highly competitive category of funding, and the applicants that received the top rankings had very good applications.

Wyman asked if the number of applicants was a surprise. Smoke replied that there were new organizations and that he believes there will be even more in future years than applied this year.

McGuinness had a question about one of the terms used in the description of one of the applicants, "emerging arts," and if the applicant means new jobs in the arts. Gilbride agreed that the term was confusing and said that the panel noted the overuse of jargon in that particular application. Watson said that the term is used by national groups in relation to new leadership in the arts field, which could mean new jobs as a focus for that organization. Seto added that the Arts Council provides quality information for those seeking jobs in the arts field through its "Arts Jobs" and "Artists' Call" listings on the Arts Council website that he edits.

Steinhauser asked if there were any first-time applicants, and Gilbride noted that at least five of the applicants recommended for funding were new to this program. Wyman asked if there was overlap between Arts for LA and Arts for Incarcerated Youth Network, and staff noted that Arts for Incarcerated Youth Network is a project of Community Partners, a southern California organization for social and civic entrepreneurs.

ACTION ITEM: Steinhauser moved to approve the panel recommendations to fund 28 Statewide and Regional Network applicants ranking 6 and above for regional and statewide service organizations in California, for a total of $490,984. McGuinness seconded, and the motion passed unanimously.

The Council took a short break at 12:40 p.m., and reconvened at 12:50 p.m.

XI. Cultural Districts RFP

Watson noted that the next agenda item concerning the new California Cultural Districts program as approved by the Legislature and signed into law last year by the Governor. The bill was carried by Assemblyman Richard Bloom, and Watson introduced Tim Pershing from Assemblyman Bloom's district office.

Pershing introduced himself and thanked the peer-review panel chairs for their hard work and long hours reviewing the program applications. He said that Assemblyman Bloom is very familiar with the positive impact of the arts and how they played a role in transforming Santa Monica from the 1970s to what it is today. Assemblyman Bloom sees a pattern with arts and cities or neighborhoods in places like Venice, CA or Jersey City, NJ – places where artists once lived but few now do because the areas have become too expensive. Pershing noted the importance of preserving the arts through the Cultural Districts program, and to develop a program that gives equal opportunity and can be applicable to small towns and large urban areas alike and can highlight local strengths and economic benefits, as well as partnering with other cultural resources like parks, historical resources, etc.

Watson noted that the Governor signed the bill in the fall of 2015, and how the Arts Council has been tasked with developing the process to enact a program in the state. California now joins 13 other states that have arts/cultural district programs. Some have economic benefits like tax incentives, abatement and technical assistance. California's statute crafts a program most like the one in Massachusetts, with the recognition of a state-sanctioned area designated as a cultural district. While there are no funds associated with California's Cultural District program currently, Watson noted that after a few years of the program, the MA legislature opted to invest in the program with $5M in their budget.

Watson proposed that the Council consider investing $48,000 of funding that was originally allocated for a statewide convening that's been postponed to the next fiscal year for a Cultural District planning consultant through the contracting Request-for-Proposals process.

Harris clarified that the statewide convening was moved to the upcoming fiscal year, and Watson confirmed.

McGuinness asked how many districts would be in the program at the start. Watson said that it was a good question, as there are dozens of potential candidates for designation, and the agency expects to receive a large number of applications. Before launching into that process, Watson recommends seeking a highly qualified consultant that can help establish the process. McGuinness asked if any of the applicants received funding, and Watson noted that the current plan for the Cultural Districts program is as a state recognition, branding and networking program, especially when working with the state's travel and tourism agency, Visit California.

Watson added that there's concern that an Arts and Culture District program will have an impact on gentrification and displace the original artists in the district, and there is need to have planning in place to address the challenge. Pershing from Assemblyman Bloom's office agreed with Watson, noting that there is information from other states and their programs for best practices.

Harris asked why the proposed amount was $48,500, and Kiburi said that the amount is under the threshold for the contract approval process after the RFP process concludes.

Gallegos said she was very worried about the destructive impact a cultural district program could have on communities of color. She is extremely cautious about supporting the program because of this concern. Watson noted that similar concerns were brought up during the legislative process, and that the chosen consultant through the RFP process would have to address this issue in a sensitive way. Watson noted that Council member Oliver could provide insight and history on this issue for the City of San Francisco. McGuinness said she observed similar issues in Oakland. Lindo noted that the same issues impacted Philadelphia as well.

Gallegos emphasized that when establishing a cultural district, the local community must be brought into the process. Fitzwater offered to show Gallegos the language from the RFP about this subject. Gallegos said she would encourage establishing cultural districts in rural areas where there is room to grow, or abandoned areas that need investment, and to not displace communities of color.

Fitzwater said that the issue would be addressed in the scope of work in the RFP. The Council engaged in a general discussion about the contracting process. Steinhauser noted that the funds must be encumbered by June 30 and asked when the proposals would be due. Fitzwater said the application would be open for four weeks.

Harris asked if the Council could have input on the details of the RFP, and Kiburi said that they can't announce the details in an RFP ahead of the official release date because of regulations and issues of fairness. Harris asked how the Council could have input, and Gallegos asked where the RFP would be posted. Branaman said that the RFP posting will be on both the Arts Council website as well as the state contracting website, and Watson added that the notification about this RFP would be widely available to the public.

Wyman asked if applicants would be companies or individuals, and Fitzwater said an applicant could be either. Steinhauer asked when the final product would be due from the contractor, and Fitzwater said four months, and Harris noted that would be in October.

ACTION ITEM: McGuinness moved to approve the reallocation of $48,500 of the $50,000 budget allocation for a statewide arts convening for the purposes of hiring a contractor to develop a comprehensive state cultural districts program. Beasley seconded. The motion passed with aye votes from Baza, Beasley, Harris, Lindo, McGuinness, Steinhauer, Wyman; no vote was cast by Gallegos.

XII. External Evaluation of Agency Programs

Gilbride gave a verbal update on program evaluation project. Programs staff is currently drafting the RFP for an external evaluation of grant programs. The RFP will be issued over the summer for an 18 month, mixed-method evaluation. The funds for this evaluation will be from non-grant programs expenditures within the programs budget.

XIII. Update from Californians for the Arts

Richard Stein, Arts Orange County and Californians for the Arts (CFTA) and California Arts Advocates (CAA): gave brief remarks and provided written fact sheet about CFTA and CAA. Noted that the CFTA has been supporting the outreach and education activities of the Arts Council, and CAA as a 501(c)4 funded with no state funds or funds from the National Endowment for the Arts, is able to hire a lobbyist to advocate for increased funding for arts programming in California to watch various bills impacting the arts community, as well as the budget process.

AB 2855 by Assemblyman Jim Frazier was on CAA's watch list, as the original language would have required all nonprofits to post overhead expenses on every web page as well as all fundraising documents, said Stein. The bill was later amended to require all web pages and fundraising documents to have links to the Attorney General's already publically accessible website on charities – a requirement that caused the nonprofit sector to nickname the legislation "The Nonprofit Warning Label Bill," said Stein. This would be an undue burden on nonprofits, including arts nonprofits, because of the cost of pre-printing and amending every document and webpage for every nonprofit in the state, forcing every nonprofit to re-print all the materials and re-publish their websites at their own cost, he said.

Other pieces of legislation Stein said CAA is watching include issues such as: homeless loitering and property owner/leasers rights – including arts nonprofits owner/leasers; summer camp regulations proposed by large camp organizations that could negatively impact smaller camp operators, including many arts organizations; and on the federal level legislation that could speed up or slow down the issuing of travel and work visas for international professionals, including international artists temporarily in the U.S. for tours, performances, or other work.

Stein added that Californians for the Arts, which had proposed to provide services to the Arts Council for a statewide arts technical-assistance and training conference in Sacramento in spring of 2016, has had difficulties finding and securing hotel space for such a conference because of the large number of conferences and other events that have already reserved space during the spring months. Stein proposed that the technical assistance conference be postponed until fall, with September 26 and 27, 2016, as an ideal date for the conference, as well as perhaps a Council meeting.

In closing, Stein added that arts funding from foundations is becoming more and more rare, noting that the Irvine Foundation – once the largest foundations in California for arts funding – has shifted their focus to families and young adults struggling with poverty, and phasing out their directed arts support. Other foundations are making similar moves, or eliminating staff positions that once had a focus on arts.

XIV. Public Comment

Harris invited members of the public to give comments to the Council. Members of the public who chose to speak include the following:

- Jessica Ceballos of Writ Large Press / Avenue 50 / Highland Park Neighborhood Council: asked that the Council consider funding micro organizations, especially organizations of color. Watson asked if Ceballos was familiar with the Cultural Pathways program from the Arts Council, and she answered in the affirmative.
- Michael Bierman, Strindberg Laboratory: thanked the Council and staff for all their hard work, including through the Arts-in-Corrections program, as Strindberg Laboratory is a contractor working at California State Prison-Los Angeles County in Lancaster.
- Henry Nuñez, Strindberg Laboratory: thanked the Council for their support, and noted that the arts helped him in his transition out of jail. Nuñez said he was introduced to theater arts programming through Strindberg Laboratory's program in the Men's Central Jail in Los Angeles, and is now working for the theater company providing arts services to autistic adults.
- Amy Eriksen, Angels Gate Cultural Center: thanked the Council for their support of arts programming in general and the Angels Gate Cultural Center over the years.
- Ana Carillo, Acuña Art Gallery and Cultural Center (artist volunteer): thanked the Council for their work and noted that the organization has applied for accessibility grants in the past, as well as the Local Impact program more recently.
- Rebecca Nevarez, Latino Arts Network: Nevarez said that as a Statewide Network grantee, she has various suggestions for the evaluation and ways to improve and streamline the grant application process. She said that many organizations don't apply because of the cumbersome nature of the application, and she was willing to serve on a team to help guide positive changes to the applications. She also wanted to thank the Council for the funding the Latino Arts Network received last year through the Professional Development Grants to create a bilingual website in English and Spanish. Nevarez said she was very willing to be on a peer-review panel and has submitted her information for consideration and been on approval lists, but has not yet been asked to serve. In closing, she said that the gentrification and communities-of-color displacement issues surrounding the Cultural Districts issue is of high concern, and is being discussed nationally.

- Sofia Klatzker, Arts for LA: thanked the Council for the eligibility change in the SRN program that allowed Arts for LA to be eligible for this funding. The funding will enable the organization to expand their convenings and technical assistance for the large urban area they cover, including partnering or joining resources with Arts for Incarcerated Youth.

XVI. Committee Reports

Fitzwater gave a report for the Thought Leadership committee, noting Steinhauser and Coppola's dedication and work on the committee. Harris said he would like the work from this committee to move forward, and for the Arts Council to be the place to go to find expertise information for anything arts related. Steinhauser reminded the Council of the upcoming plans for consortiums on arts reporting and public media, as well as one on performing arts touring and presenting.

Harris asked if there were other Committee Reports, and Watson noted that information on the Keep Arts in Schools Fund that is sometimes included in the Revenue and Resources Committee report could be found in the written Director's Report for this meeting.

XVI. Tribute to outgoing Vice Chair

Harris remarked on the leadership by Steinhauser as Vice Chair and longtime Council member, especially noting her direction of the Thought Leadership committee and the strategic planning process.

Steinhauser encouraged the Council and staff to systematically outreach to and engage with past Council members. She said that she recognizes that currently the workload for staff is overwhelming with the new programs, recent retirements, and multitude of vacancies, but a past-councilmember outreach program should be investigated. Wyman asked if Steinhauser thought there would be a cost; mostly staff time, said Steinhauser and other minimal costs.

Fitzwater thanked Steinhauser for her leadership for the strategic plan and the past-council member outreach, especially in the lead up to the 40th Anniversary event in Sacramento. Steinhauser noted that former council members can be valuable resources and supporters for the arts and the Arts Council activities. Harris said he would participate and support such a subcommittee with another member of the Council. Baza volunteered to fill this role.

Watson noted that former Councilmember Eunice David, who had served in the mid 2000s, said she would be honored to participate in such a committee or activity, and Watson said he would be in touch. Harris asked if there was a contact list of all past Council members, and Fitzwater said that during the outreach for the 40th Anniversary event, approximately half to two-thirds were contacted.

Fitzwater played a video of over a dozen leaders in the arts field saying tribute remarks to Steinhauser in dedication of her time served on the Arts Council, as well as a written statement from former Council member Bill Turner.

Steinhauser thanked the Council and staff, acknowledging many of them individually. Steinhauser added that it was important to have more women on policy board and in other areas of leadership, and that Wyman – with her tenacity and leadership for over a half century, since she was a young woman – was a role model for Steinhauser and other women. She remarked about the "lean years" of the agency when there were very few funds to invest in grant programs, and then the growth over time to the budget today. She encouraged everyone to do something creative every day.

XV. Election of Vice Chair

Harris noted that with this meeting being the last for Steinhauser as a Senate appointee, the Council need to appoint a new Vice Chair. Beasley said that the nominating committee of Beasley and Oliver recommended Lindo.

ACTION ITEM: McGuinness nominated Lindo; Gallegos seconded, and the motion passed unanimously.

XVI. Council Member Updates

Lindo noted the recent passing of the musician Prince and the loss to the music-loving public and creative community. Harris agreed that he was a very important American artist.

Beasley said that she had recently attended a roundtable on socio-emotional arts with 40 other arts leaders, and noted that funding for such activity can come from many different silos, including mental health, arts education, juvenile justice, and other areas. She noted that the reality in schools today is that educators and school staff have to deal with social and emotional issues in addition to academic issues, and the arts can have an impact.

The Council asked about issues relating to the Legislature, including membership of the legislative education committees that can impact arts education policy. Watson said that the Arts Council staff – specifically Legislative Director Kristin Margolis – will be watching the committee changes in the Legislature. He also noted that he was asked to testify in Senate Subcommittee 5: Public Safety about the Arts-in-Corrections program, which is currently set at $3.5 M for FY 2015-16 through the interagency agreement with the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, but which will decrease to $2 M in FY 2016-17. He added that the legislative committee commented that the Arts Council's contracting process was considered a best-practice model.

Gilbride reminded the Council that there will be a large number of peer-review panel recommendations to review and funding allocations to approve at the June 2016 meeting, including for the Artists in Schools, Local Impact, Professional Development, Creative California Communities, Veterans Initiative in the Arts, and Cultural Pathways programs. She noted that the presentation of the programs items at the June meeting will be very similar and consistent with this meeting.

Harris noted that he's observed an increase in the amount of anxiety expressed by children, so much so that more and more they cannot seem to cope in a classroom setting, and he wondered if arts education can assist. Watson noted that the National Endowment for the Arts has begun conversations about arts and mental health, and Steinhauser added that the Western States Arts Federation has explored the topic as well, especially considering that suicides are on the rise.

XVII. Adjournment

The Council adjourned in the memory of:

- Prince, with Lindo repeating her remarks about the loss of this creative musical artist;
- Country music legend Merle Haggard, originally from the Central Valley, and
- San Francisco theater pioneer Richard Reineccius, who founded the influential Julian Theater in 1965.

Re: Director's Report

Budget! Where we now stand....

As I write this, we remain unsure in terms of our budget picture for next year. As we recently reported, the Senate put forward a very exciting proposal to increase our budget by $10.8 million. As a reminder, this was made up of the $4million the Governor added to our Arts and Corrections “line item” through his May Revised budget, $6 million for our core grant programs and $800,000 for “pilot programs” to address the needs of the former incarcerated/recently released.

But as of this moment, the only part that is secure is the $4 million increase for our Arts in Corrections work. That is because both the Senate and Assembly concurred on this specific part of the Governor’s new budget. On the remainder....because the Assembly did not have the same increase as the Senate in their version, this difference has gone to the Joint Budget Conference committee for resolution.

We had hoped to know by now where we stood with the Conference committee, but the situation is still very fluid and the committee has yet to conclude their proceedings. We should know by the end of this week the reconciliation of the differences and if we are being proposed for a further increase. If something is recommended beyond the $4 million for AIC, then that increase would still need to be signed off on by the Governor as he reviews what the legislature sends him as their version of next year’s budget. He could sign off on any increase or he could “blue pencil” it out of what he signs.

We will have much more to say about all of this very soon and by our meeting on June 16th (if not sooner) should be able to give a full reporting.

Arts in Corrections

In addition to the good news on the expanded funding for Arts in Corrections, there is one other major budget change being proposed by the Senate that would benefit our AIC work. The Senate proposed bringing back into state service a position that used to exist in our state prisons. That is the “Artist Facilitator” role. If this survives the budget process and is signed by the Governor, the Department of Corrections would have over $3 million to hire this position for each of the 34 prisons that will be involved in AIC next year. Again, we will give the Council an update on this at our upcoming meeting.

Programs/Grants Update

For our upcoming meeting, the Council will be reviewing the panel recommendations for the following programs (all from our '15-'16 budget):

- Cultural Pathways (budget allocation: $250,000): We received 73 applications totaling $690,000 in requests and will recommend funding 29 programs for a total of $280,000.
- Local Impact (budget allocation: $1,345,000): We received 198 applications totaling $2,257,285 in requests and will recommend funding 154 programs for a total of $1,435,629.
- Creative California Communities (budget allocation $2,000,000): We received 117 applications totaling $5,552,218 in requests and will recommend funding 50 programs for a total of $1,953,707.
- Veterans Initiative in the Arts (budget allocation: $350,000): We received 35 applications totaling $339,022 and will recommend funding 33 programs for a total of $300,268.
- Professional Development and Consulting (budget allocation: $300,000): We received 168 applications totaling $454,145 in requests and will recommend funding 122 programs for a total of $328,500.

And lastly, we will present recommendations for our Artists in Schools program (funds come from our '16-'17 budget):

Artists in Schools (budget allocation: $1,309, 448): We received 162 applications totaling $1,847,162 in requests and will recommend funding 141 programs for a total of $1,309,448

Deputy Director Update

Human Resources:

- The final application date for the Staff Services Analyst (Diane's former position) was June 3 and we have 155 applicants! This position is scheduled to be filled before June 30.
- We have begun the paperwork to hire replacement staff for John Seto who retires June 30 and Tom Bergman (our IT staff) who retires October 1st. Advertisements for 2 AAGA (Programs) positions and one Programmer position (Tom's IT position) will be released shortly.

Relationship Building with Control Agencies:

- The Deputy Director is meeting with key members of the State Finance team and establishing herself as the primary contact for the CAC.

- Same with key members of Legislative Analyst's Office. This relationship is key to any of the budget and legislative work that we are currently immersed in.
- Following up also with Fi$Cal representatives to officially meet, review progress/barriers with the Fi$Cal system and establish a management reporting line with Ayanna as the primary contact.

Staffing Update

We have filled one of our open programs position with Jaren Bonillo. Jaren started this week on June 6 and will attend our June meeting so the Council can meet her.

Also, we just learned that our Budget Officer Ian Branaman has accepted a new position and promotion that will take him to the State Parks agency. Ian has been an integral part of our administrative team for nearly three years, and he will be greatly missed -- but we wish Ian only the best as he takes on this new opportunity.

As a reminder, Diane will be attending our upcoming meeting so we can properly wish her well in retirement. Also, John Seto, as we had previously noted, will be attending his last Council meeting prior to his retirement at the end of the month.

Keep Arts in Schools Fund

We are on track so far to hit our $250,000 minimum target for the voluntary tax contribution program. Through April, the Franchise Tax Board has reported collections totaling $188,734. At this same point in 2014 and 2015 respectively, we had collected $188,253 and $193,083. With the tactics we are deploying currently, we expect we will hit our goal by the end of the year.

Arts and Culture Districts program

The Council will recall that we published an RFP to solicit for a consultant(s) to assist in the design of our new Arts and Culture Districts program. The deadline to submit was June 2 and we received six proposals. Our internal staff review team (Ayanna, Caitlin, Shelly, Mary Beth and Craig) officially opened the proposals on June 6 and following state procedures ranked each. As called for in state contracting, we posted on June 7 our "intent to award" the contract for these services to Cusick Consulting. This group, led by the former Director of Cultural Affairs, City of Santa Monica, Jessica Cusick, submitted a very compelling and ultimately winning proposal. Included on the team working on this consultancy is Dr. Maria Rosario Jackson. Dr. Jackson is an internationally recognized expert in the areas of community development and revitalization; the dynamics of race and ethnicity; systems change and the role of arts and culture in communities.

Cusick and Jackson bring an unparalleled background to this work ahead...we are very excited!

Director Engagement

- May 11 Director testified at Creative Economy hearing before the Joint Legislative Committee for the Arts
- May 17 Director presents award to Senator Jim Nielsen as part of his recognition with the Artistic License Award from California Lawyers for the Arts
- May 25 Meeting with Steven Leigh, Executive Director, Los Angeles Theatre Alliance. Discussed their interests in promoting the Arts and Cultural Districts program as a strategy for theater facility development
- May 26 Served as first round judge for the Land Art Generator Initiative competition in Santa Monica. This international effort receives proposals that combine public art and a process to generate clean power or clean water.
- June 4 Attended and participated in one of the 14 Town Hall meetings held by the LA County Arts Commission as part of their ongoing work on Access and Equity. Held at the Armory Center for the Arts in Pasadena.

Re: Creative California Communities Recommendations, FY 2015-2016

Staff Recommendation

Staff requests approval of panel recommendations to fund 41 project grant applications ranking 8 and above, and 9 planning grant applications, totaling $1,953,707 in allocation to the Creative California Communities (CCC) program for creative placemaking projects.

2015-16 CCC Funding Requests and Panel Recommendations

Two five-member Peer Review Panels convened in May and June 2016 to review CCC applications according to the stated review criteria in the published FY 15-16 CCC guidelines. One of our most competitive grant programs of 15-16, we received 117 applications requesting a total of $5.5M, almost triple the original funding allocation of $2M. Based on the panels' rankings, staff recommends funding 41 CCC grant applications ranked 8 and above at a percentage of their request amount based on their ranking, and 9 planning grants of $2,500 each.

The CCC program awards the largest grants of any CAC program, with award amounts ranging from $30,000-$70,000, and those grants are highly competitive. FY 15-16 is the third year of the program, and it is the first year that CCC is considered one of the Council's core programs, rather than a pilot. The allocation to this program almost doubled from FY 14-15 when it transitioned to a core program, but we received approximately 25% more applications, as well. Funding through rank 8 is consistent with FY 14-15. Applicants scoring 7 or below will be encouraged to review the panel notes and to apply again in the future.

CCC Panel Representative

Ben Frandzel

Ben Frandzel is the Institutional Gifts and Community Engagement Officer for Stanford Live, and previously was Managing Director of Oakland theatre company Opera Piccola. He writes about music and the arts for a variety of publications, most frequently the San Francisco Classical Voice website. Ben studied Music and English at Northwestern University and studied in the graduate program in music composition at San Francisco State University. He has performed as a guitarist, has written chamber works, and has collaborated with dance, theater, and visual artists.

CCC Grant Program Overview

The Creative California Communities (CCC) program supports collaborative projects that harness arts and culture as vehicles for creative placemaking. A successful project represents the distinct character and quality of its community and presents a vision for enhancing the social or economic livability of that community through the arts. Projects benefit residents and visitors to California’s communities by leveraging the assets of the creative sector (artists, cultural organizations and arts-related businesses) to address community needs or priorities. Proposed projects must be designed and developed by the applicant organization in collaboration with at least one partnering organization, and should centralize California artists and their work in the project design and implementation. Project must address at least one of the following goals:

- Animate, activate or revitalize communities - neighborhoods, streets, blocks, city, region - using arts as the central project activity and artists as key participants in that effort.
- Activate new arts activities or expanded arts activities/elements within an ongoing event.
- Develop innovative arts-based approaches to address specific community identity, needs, circumstances or priorities.
- Stimulate increased participation/engagement in arts and cultural activities by residents and visitors.
- Bring together local arts, business and/or government entities to build capacity for arts and culture through collective action, and to mobilize public will in the community for the arts and culture.
- Grow creative industries and create jobs and opportunities for California artists.

CCC Applicant Statistics

117 applications were received from 44 different counties, representing all of California’s eight regions. Funding recommendations closely align with applicant regional diversity, as demonstrated in the table below:

Region	% of Applicants	% Recommended
Los Angeles-Orange County	26	24
San Francisco County	21	24
Greater Bay Area	19	22
San Diego-Imperial County	10	10
Capital Region	8	10
Central Valley	5	3
Central Coast	4	2
Upstate California	3	2
Inland Empire	3	3

Not only were the applicants regionally representative, they were also representative of the broad range of institutional sizes that are supported by the CAC. While funding recommendation rates peaked at organizations of a medium-high overall organizational budget ($1M - $5M), a significant percentage of applications were recommended for funding across all institutional sizes. Detailed analytics are indicated in the following table:

Institutional Operating Budget	Total Applications	% of Apps Recommended for Funding
$5M+	13	6 of 13 - 46%
$1M - $4.9M	24	15 of 24 - 63%
$500K - $999K	27	13 of 27 - 48%
$200K - $499K	30	8 of 30 - 27%
<$200K	23	9 of 23 - 39%

Creative placemaking is an emerging concept in the arts and culture field, both in terms of its goals and its capacities. All applicants were referred to the Creative Placemaking Executive Summary from the National Endowment for the Arts in order to understand how the Council defines the term. Practitioners and community members engaged in this work continually confront questions as to how and where creative placemaking can occur, what partners should be involved, and what outcomes are achievable with what resources in a given timeframe. The recommended grantees for CAC funding in this grant cycle conceived diverse, innovative responses to these questions in their project designs. Successful applicants are cultivating creative communities in the inner city and on mountain trails; they are involving partners in government, local business, institutions of higher learning, and other arts organizations; they are benefitting the entire populace of particular geographic locations, and targeting specific, at-risk populations; they are investing millions, and they are doing everything they can with what they and their partners can cobble together. What unifies these applicants as successful creative placemakers is their commitment to mobilizing public will for the arts, to investing deeply in collaboration with local partners, and to tailoring their projects to the specific characteristics of their communities and locales.

Project Summaries

PLANNING GRANTS - Recommended for Funding

CCC-15-00036

Arts Benicia, Inc., Solano

With support from the CAC, Arts Benicia will work with City of Benicia Parks & Community Services Department, Arts & Culture Commission, and other partners to engage the local arts community in the design of Waterfront Park, whose recently completed Master Plan (MP) calls for the integration of art throughout the site. We will plan and host three facilitated discussions about the MP, best practices for arts-centered placemaking, and integrating art into the design of public spaces.

CCC-15-00151

Arts Connection, San Bernardino

With support from the California Arts Council, Arts Connection will begin the planning phase of an arts-centric community garden to be situated on a vacant lot. We will convene our partners to develop a series of questions and strategies for community engagement. We will then mobilize volunteers to implement these strategies and gather community input. We will reconvene to process the results and produce a proposal for the Creative California Communities Project Grant.

CCC-15-00067

City of Davis Arts & Cultural Affairs, Yolo

With support from the California Arts Council, the City of Davis will partner with the Arts Alliance—arts providers, artists, merchants, YoloArts, Visitors Bureau, and UC Davis—to conduct strategic planning exercises with an organizational development specialist. The anticipated outcome of this exercise will be a strategic plan for the implementation of creative programs within the Davis community. Our goal is to choose one or more of the developed ideas to apply for a CCC grant in 16-17.

CCC-15-00097

City of Scotts Valley, Santa Cruz

With support from the California Arts Council, the City of Scotts Valley will plan an annual outdoor display of large-scale art within the City of Scotts Valley for June–Sept 2017, engage the community through in-person and virtual dialogs, and draw upon the experiences of organizers of similar events.

CCC-15-00154

Freedom Bound Center, Sacramento

With support from the California Arts Council, Sol Collective will expand upon its Global Local music series, creating monthly music showcases for California cultural artists culminating in a free, community music festival showcasing local artists. This planning grant will support the development of a committee to organize contacts, develop partnerships, seek sponsorship, and identify California's premier cultural artists.

CCC-15-00023

Higher Gliffs, Alameda

With the support from the California Arts Council, the Community Rejuvenation Project will convene an intensive meeting with key stakeholders to map a strategy for an in-depth community engagement project to film oral history interviews with pioneering Boogaloo, Robotin, and Strutting Dancers. Re: Cultural Pathways Funding Recommendations, FY 2015-2016

Staff Recommendation

Staff requests approval of panel recommendations to fund 28 Cultural Pathways (Pathways) applicants ranking 8 and above for two years of organizational assistance in the amount of $280,000.

2015-16 Pathways Funding Requests and Panel Recommendations

A five-member Peer Review Panel convened from April 27-29, 2016 to review Pathways applications according to the stated review criteria in the published FY15-16 Pathways guidelines. In this pilot year, Pathways applicants applied for general operating funding in the amount of $5,000 a year for two years as articulated in the guidelines. Upon approval, each recommended grantee will receive $10,000 in grant funding over the course of 2 years in this budget allocation, as Council approved in September of 2015.

73 applications were received for this program. 4 applications were deemed ineligible. The panel reviewed 69 applications requesting a total of $690,000 for the 2-year cycle ($345,000 per year). Based on the panel's recommendations, staff recommends funding 28 Pathways applications ranking 8 or higher in the amount of $280,000 for two years of funding. This recommendation exceeds the original budget allocation of $250,000 by $30,000 and can be accommodated by using a portion of unused JUMP StArts allocation.

Pilot programs tend to be highly competitive, with small budget allocations in the first year. The recommendation to fund through rank 8 is in accordance with past practice for peer reviewed pilot programs. Because this unique program awards a flat $5,000 each year, CAC deemed applications funded or not funded. We used the 10-point ranking system to determine the funding recommendations. In the pilot year, the 10-point system gives staff a nuanced understanding of the varying level of application quality, and provides a foundation to develop technical assistance based on the needs of the grantees as indicated in their applications. Funding for technical assistance and professional development activities will be allocated from the 2016-2017 grant programs budget.

Pathways Panel Representative

The Cultural Pathways panel will be represented by Lily Kharrazi. Lily Kharrazi works at Alliance for California Traditional Arts (ACTA), managing the Living Cultures Grants Program and the Traditional Arts Roundtable Series since 2005. She has been an advocate of culturally-specific art genres in the Bay Area for three decades. Lily has a degree in Dance Ethnology and interdisciplinary Ethnic Arts from UCLA, training under pioneer of the field, Allegra Fuller Snyder. She worked with the San Francisco Ethnic Dance Festival from 1991-2003, where as program director she crafted nine seasons of work. Lily served as faculty/mentor to the 2006 initiative of the Regional Dance Development Initiative in San Francisco which was piloted by NEFA. She was a co-curator for the Performing Diaspora Series at CounterPulse San Francisco in 2013. Her articles on dance and culture can be found in publications such as InDance and through ACTA's e-newsletter, The New Moon. She has served as an adjudicator and consultant to local, regional, and national arts and culture foundations such as the Ford Foundation, San Francisco Arts Commission, and California Arts Council.

Pathways Grant Program Overview and Purpose

The Cultural Pathways (Pathways) program is a new pilot grant program rooted in the California Arts Council's (CAC) commitment to serving the needs of an increasingly demographically complex California, and the belief that a healthy arts ecosystem reflects contributions from all of California's diverse populations.

Purpose:

In this pilot year, Pathways is focused on small and emerging arts groups that are rooted in communities of color, recent immigrant and refugee communities, and tribal groups. The purpose of the Pathways program is to strengthen the capacity of small, new and emerging arts groups that serve and represent the diversity of California and to anchor the creative work of these groups in the cultural landscape of the state. The program is designed to support the cultural work that is developed within a community to authentically express, celebrate and cultivate the identity of that community.

Pathways grantees will participate in technical assistance, professional development and co-learning activities as indicated in the guidelines for this program. Those activities will be developed by staff in consultation with the grantee cohort in the coming months.

Pathways Applicant Statistics

Approximately 40% of the applications received are being recommended for funding. 73 applications were received from 21 of the state's 58 counties, and organizations recommended for funding are based in 12 counties. Of the 28 organizations recommended, 10 served Los Angeles, and 2 serve in each of Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Orange, San Diego, and San Francisco counties. Remaining counties represented include Fresno, Sacramento, San Bernardino, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, and Ventura counties.

Recommended proposals support organizations rooted in a variety of culturally specific communities, including African/African American, American Indian/Native American, Burmese, Eritrean, Filipino, Garifuna, Laotian, Iranian, Mongolian, Oaxacan, Mexican, Tibetan, and Tongva communities, as well as ethnically diverse communities. Recent immigrant and refugee communities are also represented as well as LGBTQ communities of color. A variety of artistic and cultural practices are supported by these organizations, including relatively contemporary mediums of hip-hop dance, film, symphonic music, and theater, as well as pre-colonial, traditional and folk art forms including mask-making, traditional gong and drum performance, singing, dance, calligraphy, and storytelling.

African American Historical & Cultural Museum of the San Joaquin Valley, Fresno

African American

In 1984, the African American Historical & Cultural Museum of the San Joaquin Valley Museum was established to provide a vehicle for African Americans who made significant contributions to the richness of the San Joaquin Valley. The museum is committed to telling the story of African Americans in all its permutations: family life, the Civil Rights movement, arts and entertainment, sports, medicine, architecture, politics, religion, law and technology. The African American Historical & Cultural Museum of the San Joaquin Valley is the only entity of its kind, located in Fresno, California to serve the entire Central Valley. The specific purpose of this corporation is to promote an understanding, appreciation, and awareness of African Americans, historically and culturally, throughout the San Joaquin Valley.

AfroSolo Theatre Company, San Francisco

African American and African

Diaspora

The mission of the AfroSolo Theatre Company is to nurture, promote and present African American and African Diasporan art and culture through solo performances and the visual and literary arts. Through art, we bring people of all ethnicities together to explore and share the human spirit that binds us all. Since 1994, we have presented the annual AfroSolo Arts Festival, the only festival of its kind in the United States. A forum for African Americans and the larger African Diaspora, the festival highlights the work of a wide range of solo performing artists and visual artists, giving voice to the unique experience of being Black, while fostering dialogue about Black arts and culture and the social issues that fuel these artists.

Alternative Theater Ensemble, Marin

artists of color

Mission: Committed to the creative growth of theater artists and to a community that is inclusive, diverse, and accepting, AlterTheater seeks to make theater more accessible to the non-theatergoing public by producing compelling work in places where people are, and to reconnect all theatergoers with the unique power of intimate, immediate storytelling. Founded on the principles of ensemble collaboration and artistic risk, AlterTheater Ensemble is also committed to new works and local artists. Purpose: AlterTheater exists to expand opportunities to artists of color, to give voice to the unheard, and to bring the marginalized to the consciousness of the mainstream. We produce in highly visible places, particularly in storefronts along the downtown pedestrian shopping district, where passersby can "window shop" theater. We make theater seem fun and accessible to people who might not normally think about attending a play. Our audiences are nearly 2/3 low-income.

Cambodian experience

The Cambodia Town Film Festival (CTFF) is a multi-day film forum that screens new studio and independent features, documentaries, foreign features, short films, animated shorts and re-released classics. Each year's program includes a variety of special events and panel discussions featuring directors, producers, writers and actors. CTFF provides a creative forum for both seasoned and emerging filmmakers and artists, offering an opportunity for both students and well-established professionals to showcase their talent. One of the key purposes of CTFF is to highlight the diversity of the Cambodian experience through the art of filmmaking. By specifically featuring films that deal with not only traditional genres and topics but contemporary socio-political conflicts, economic challenges, and identity negotiation as well, the Festival seeks to encourage new dialogue on a global scale. The fourth CTFF will be held September 1-4, 2016.

3 Lopez Productions, San Francisco

Latino

3 López (3LP) is an SF Mission-based collective of artists, immigrants, and visionaries who seek to reflect and represent the immigrant experience in the U.S. through theatre. 3LP brings to the stage the real stories that illustrate the immigrant community's struggles that include: cultural adaptation, language barriers, and fear of broken legal systems. Recognizing the role art plays in social change, 3LP collaborates with local community-based organizations such as CARECEN, Mujeres Unidas y Activas, and Padres Unidos. The collective's bilingual works, such as critically acclaimed "What is the Scandal?" create a bridge between American and immigrant cultures by allowing audience members to step into the immigrant experiences of constantly straddling two languages, two cultures--two worlds. The group has performed at venues such as San Francisco's Mission Cultural Center, La Pena in Berkeley, The Victoria Theatre, and the San Francisco International Arts Festival.

Vietnamese culture

California has become the home of many Vietnamese immigrants. The mainstream educational institutions are not equipped with adequate programs for the younger generation to learn and appreciate their Vietnamese heritage. We (Against The Wind) fear that the rich and distinctive Vietnamese culture would soon be forgotten. ATW's mission is to preserve and develop Vietnamese Traditional dance. Since not every Vietnamese family can afford to put their children in Dance schools. ATW was formed to give Dance scholarships to Vietnamese of low-income/single-parent families. ATW enhance and broaden the lives of the Vietnamese immigrants through traditional dances. We introduce people to multiple disciplines of performing arts to enrich their life choices. We celebrate and encourage cultural unity through performing arts and provide a safe environment for the youths. We promote, enhance the cultural understanding of communities of various ethnicity and cultural backgrounds.

The goal of the "Our Town, Our Children. A Social Awareness Art Project" is to bring community awareness and understanding to the detrimental effects homelessness has on the children's emotional development while providing a venue for children to freely express their emotions, moods, and feelings through the use of art. Program is opened to all children and teens. Children learn how to get involved in social action and also learn how even the youngest "artists" can make a difference in the community (in order to respect those children who are currently facing homelessness no names will ever be written on the artwork). Homelessness is something very hard to talk about and a very sensitive subject. We provide a creative outlet to foster self esteem, deter the feeling of isolation and provide a safe and stable environment for the children to express themselves without signaling out an individual child that may be facing challenging times and let them know that they are not alone.

Re: Local Impact Funding Recommendations, FY 2015-2016

Staff Recommendation

Staff requests approval of panel recommendations to fund 149 Local Impact (LI) applicants ranking 7 and above for project and partnership support in the amount of $1,434,753.

2015-16 LI Funding Requests and Panel Recommendations

Three five-member Peer Review Panels convened in May 2016 to review LI applications according to the stated review criteria in the published FY15-16 LI guidelines. The most popular grant program of 15-16, we received a total of 198 applications requesting a total of $2.25M, 63% more than the original funding allocation of $1.345M. Of the 198 application received, 5 were deemed ineligible and 193 applications were reviewed by the panels. 5 applicants applied for both Local Impact and Creative California Communities, and based on their ranks are eligible for funding in both programs. However, because of the dual funding restrictions in the guidelines, all five chose to be recommended for funding in CCC. Based on the panels' rankings, staff recommends funding 149 LI grant applications ranked 7 and above at a percentage of their request amount based on their ranking.

This program was highly competitive this year. Applicants scoring 6 or below will be encouraged to review the panel notes and apply again in the future. This recommendation exceeds the original allocation by $89,753. This will be accommodated by utilizing unused funds from other grant programs, in keeping with past practice.

LI Panel Representative

Denise Pate Pearson is the Cultural Funding Coordinator for the City of Oakland Cultural Funding Program, where she manages an open, competitive grant-making process that awards annual support to 70-80 artists and arts organizations. She has spent over 20 years working in a variety of nonprofit organizations that focus on arts education and presenting, youth development, and community empowerment. Over the years, she has established working relationships with private foundations, donors, government agencies, and corporate foundations. She was also a member of Dimensions Dance Theater. Denise has a B.A. from Dominican University of California, and an MBA from the University of Phoenix.

LI Grant Program Overview

The Local Impact program is rooted in the California Arts Council’s (CAC) vision to create a state where the arts are a central component of daily life and accessible to all. The Local Impact (LI) program fosters equity, access, and opportunity by providing project support for arts organizations with operational budgets under $1 Million that reach underserved communities. All projects must extend the reach of the arts to underserved populations that have limited access to the arts.

LI Applicant Statistics

198 applications were received from 41 different counties, representing all of California’s eight regions; recommended projects represent 30 counties and seven regions (see full geographic analytics in table below).

REGION	% of apps	% of recommended
BAY AREA
San Francisco	24	29
Other Bay Area	19	20
LA/Orange
LA County	23	24
Orange	3	3
Capital Region	4	4
Central Coast	6	3
Inland Empire	2	0
Central Valley	8	7
San Diego/Imperial	5	5
Upstate	5	3

Applicants defined their underserved communities in a variety of ways. Many applications identified multiple underserved constituencies within the community that they planned to engage. More than 50% of applications identified a specific ethnic group as the basis for their community, and more than 60% identified low income constituents as the target population. Many utilized local census data to pinpoint particularly underserved areas, such as San Francisco’s Tenderloin, LA’s Boyle Heights and the isolated rural communities of the far north and inland regions of the state. Other target populations included refugees, those in the LGBTQ community, people with disabilities, and victims of sex trafficking, among others. In ranking the impact of the applications, the panelists considered not only how the applicant identified the “underserved community”, but the ways in which they planned to engage that community in both the development and execution of the artistic project.

Beginning in 2001, Valerie noticed a connection between her students' families and her program content, and created the Master Teacher Program, multi-week residency programs for children led by masters of cultural dance forms familiar to the children she serves. Valerie's professional and curriculum development work includes workshops on arts in many Bay Area communities.
Kenshaka Ali	Theatre	Riverside/Riverside
Kenshaka Ali is an interdisciplinary performer, director, and educator with more than 20 years of service as a theatre professor and director in colleges, universities and conservatories across the country. Born and raised in New York City, where he spent his childhood engaged in theater during the Black Arts Movement, he has served as producing artistic director for youth theater companies in New York, Pennsylvania and California, bringing traditional as well as devised theater to underserved audiences and alternative venues while heralding the arts as a spiritual and healing process integral to a free and humane society. In addition to professional memberships in SAG/AFTRA and Actors Equity Association, Mr. Ali holds an MFA in Interdisciplinary Arts from Goddard College, a MA in Theatre from Stony Brook University, and a BA in Transformative Theatre from CUNY's Special Baccalaureate Program for Unique and Interdisciplinary Studies.
Jennifer Laine	Dance / Multidisciplinary	Hollister/San Benito
Jennifer Laine has been the Executive Director of the San Benito County Arts Council since 2010. She also teaches modern dance at the San Benito Dance Academy and had previously performed with Mel Wong Dance. She has worked as an independent consultant to companies, nonprofits and private individuals abroad, advising on such topics as presentation skills, job coaching, academic writing and publishing. Her previous panel service includes the Center for Cultural Innovation, the Institute for International Education (Fulbright Scholarship Program), and the Community Foundation for San Benito County. She holds a B.A. in Art History from UC Santa Cruz and a M.A. in Global Studies from the University of Leipzig, Germany.
Joseph S. Lewis	Visual Arts	Irvine/Orange
President of the Board of Trustees of the Noah Purifoy Foundation, Mr. Lewis is a visual artist, photographer, musician, and art critic. He was dean of the University of California, Irvine's Claire Trevor School of the Arts from 2010 to 2014, when he stepped down to return to the Art Department faculty. As a visual artist, photographer, conceptual artist and performing artist, Mr. Lewis has been the recipient of awards, commissions and fellowships, including an Award of Excellence from Communication Arts, National Endowment for the Arts grants, a Ford Foundation Fellowship and a Thomas J. Watson Fellowship. He served as chair at the Department of Art at California State University, Northridge from 1995 to 2001. Mr. Lewis currently is on the boards of Chamber Music Orange County, Project Hope Alliance, and California Lawyers for the Arts.
Donnie Matsuda	Theatre/Arts Admin	Palo Alto/Santa Clara
Donnie received his B.A. in Human Biology from Stanford and his M.D. from the Stanford School of Medicine with a focus on community health and public policy. He has worked in arts administration at TheatreWorks Silicon Valley, as Associate Producer at Mo`olelo Performing Arts Company, and in Audience Engagement at La Jolla Playhouse. In San Diego, Donnie serves as Steering Committee Secretary and Communications Chair of Rising Arts Leaders San Diego and as Cultural Row Director of the Asian Cultural Festival.

RECOMMENDED APPLICATIONS

LI-15-00012

3rd i South Asian Independent Film, San Francisco

3rd i requests $12,000 to support the 14th annual International South Asian Film Festival in November 2016. The Festival's San Francisco and Palo Alto screenings will authentically explore South Asian lives and experiences and bring together the Bay Area's underserved residents of Indian, Pakistani, Bangladeshi, Sri Lankan, Afghani and other ethnic descents. CAC funds will support the Festival's curatorial and production expenses.

LI-15-00184

509 Cultural Center, San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, the 509 Cultural Center will present and produce 10 free multidisciplinary performing arts programs at the Tenderloin National Forest, an outdoors inner-city arts venue serving the culturally diverse residents of San Francisco's poorest neighborhood. CAC funds will support the fees of the artists whose 10 performances will provide low-income audiences access to arts projects that address their lives and concerns.

LI-15-00188

ABD Productions, San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, ABD Productions will further develop Skywatchers, an innovative project that brings formerly homeless residents of the Tenderloin into collaboration with professional artists for the creation of multidisciplinary, site-specific performance installations. A primary goal of the project is to fully engage participants in the conception and presentation of free, publicly accessible performances that reflect the richness of their stories.

LI-15-00016

About Productions, Inc., Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, About...Productions will produce a 4-day, site-specific event series The Latin Wave: Exploring Myth, Illusion and Cultural Appropriation at the San Gabriel Mission Playhouse. The centerpiece is our re-imagined 2005 theaterwork They Shoot Mexicans, Don't They? complemented by an interactive symposium; an exhibit of artifacts, photos, and enacted oral histories; and silent film screenings.

LI-15-00152

Amador County Arts Council, Amador

With support from the California Arts Council, AmadorArts will work with community partners to offer arts workshops through local senior centers, family resources centers and other community spaces to improve access to the arts for populations who are currently underserved, including: seniors, veterans, low-income families, Native Americans and Hispanic groups. These classes will culminate with public exhibits and artists receptions at each community center.

LI-15-00090

Amazing Grace Conservatory, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, Amazing Grace Conservatory will provide access for 200 underserved South Los Angeles youth of color in year-round performing arts instruction and an educational enrichment program led by award-winning industry professionals. Through socially relevant student-inspired performances, hearts are healed and voices are heard. Youth are able to express their creative and artistic abilities; significantly, impacting themselves and their community.

LI-15-00143

API Cultural Center, Inc., dba Oakland Asian Cultural Center, Alameda

With support from the California Arts Council, Oakland Asian Cultural Center (OACC) will collaborate with GER Youth Center to provide weekly Mongolian traditional dance, art, and language classes for youth. The project will include two free public performances at OACC's festivals plus a special culminating event, "Treasures of Mongolia." The project increases access to arts and culture for the newly-emerging Mongolian community, as well as among senior, youth, and low-income audiences.

LI-15-00088

Art Escape, Sonoma

With support from the California Arts Council, Art Escape will expand Arte con la Familia, a series of free hands-on art workshops for families, conducted in Spanish. Arte con la Familia invites local families (Spanish-speaking, English-speaking, and bilingual) on Sunday afternoons to learn about art materials and techniques, explore creative self-expression, work on art projects alongside their children, interact with other families, build a sense of pride in themselves and their community.

LI-15-00189

Arte Americas: The Mexican Arts Center, Fresno

With support from the CAC, Arte Americas will build upon its successful annual de los Muertos Fall programming and the second year of its project to create collaborative celebrations in the surrounding communities of Madera, Sanger, Selma and Visalia. We will share our funding, together with our resources, to reach 5,000 participants in those communities. The localized sites programming will be marketed collaboratively as a celebration of de los Muertos Valleywide.

LI-15-00037

Arts Benicia, Inc., Solano

With support from the California Arts Council, Arts Benicia will activate an expanded Teen Art Program (TAP). Arts Benicia currently offers a variety of dynamic, year-round youth art programs that engage children and their families, and it is now poised to increase its offerings for teens to include on-site art workshops, community leadership and mentoring experiences, and art apprenticeship opportunities.

LI-15-00162

Arts Collaborative of Nevada County, Nevada

With support from California Arts Council, NCArts will present the 1st Annual Sierra Poetry Festival, drawing from a rich resource of poets and performers spanning the county, in partnership with Sierra College. It will be a pilot for an ongoing annual event reaching beyond county lines. For this, our first year, there will be a strong flavor of local talent and opportunity, with poets, critics and visionaries gathering for two days of readings, slams, workshops, discussion and youth voices.

LI-15-00019

Arts Orange County, Orange

With support from the California Arts Council, Arts Orange County will produce "Dia del Nino," a one-day festival of arts for underserved children and families living in downtown Santa Ana, on April 30, 2017. ArtsOC initiated the event in 2012 through a two-year grant from The James Irvine Foundation, followed by three years of funding from the National Endowment for the Arts. It is a model of arts engagement and collaboration that has a significant local community impact.

LI-15-00234

Association for the Advancement of Filipino American Arts & Culture, Los Angeles

With support of the California Arts Council Abdullatif Touncara will provide Traditional African Storytelling, Dancing and Drumming at Arte Americas, Fresno Art Museum, Chaffey Zoo and Mary Ella Brown Community Center.

LI-15-00226

High Desert Test Sites, San Bernardino

With support from the California Arts Council, HDTS will create the Community Mapping Program, which highlights visionary art environments and sites of cultural interests in the High Desert through an artist-designed map, a public visitor’s center, and public programming. The map and programming will feature local landmarks, art installations, and sites created by visionary desert figures. The project encourages engagement between members of the local community and visitors to the desert.

LI-15-00180

HNDP, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, HNDP will expand beyond the Eastside of LA into another underserved neighborhood in LA. With our innovative "☐☐Lunch Truck"☐☐ model, bringing everything needed to fully run programming including laptops, tablets & audio equipment, we're more flexible than traditional brick & mortar nonprofits. And since much of our Eastside programming to date has been instructed in-kind, this push will allow us to kickoff a paid model for our instructor network.

LI-15-00062

Imperial Valley Desert Museum Society, Imperial

With support from the California Arts Council, the Imperial Valley Desert Museum (IVDM) will partner with the Rainforest Art Project and Seeley School District to enhance project-driven arts curriculum and create mosaic art installations at the museum. Funds will support professional local artists and educators teaching ceramics to students, and will buy materials to build and install finished projects. This mosaic will both beautify the area and engage students with art and the desert.

LI-15-00052

Indian Fine Arts Academy of San Diego,

USA

With support from the California Arts Council, Indian Fine Arts Academy of San Diego will present a grand musical ensemble thematic performance by the top 5 young professionals of Carnatic (South Indian Classical) music led by eminent musician and scholar Dr. S Sowmya as part of the grand finale of the 10th Annual Festival of Indian Classical Music & Dance in San Diego.

LI-15-00017

Institute of Art, Music & Science, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, the IAMS will provide local low-income K-6 students for free music lessons on an instrument of their choice. $12,000 is the requisite amount to fund a 30-minute private lesson, once a week, for 8 months, for 12 students. Student eligibility will be determined by a free lunch form, a teacher-recommendation form, and a C+/ B- GPA. After 8 months, a group recital will be held, at which students will perform for a live audience.

LI-15-00135

Instituto Mazatlan Bellas Artes, Sacramento

We will bring Cultural Dance to the Sacramento community. 1) We will reach out into the underserved youth in our community and provide hands on instruction in Hip Hop and Classical Ballet. 2) We will present our finished works at an IMBA school recital that will be open and available to the community. 3) The regular planned meetings will give the community a chance to see how arts impacts lives.

LI-15-00237

La Peña Cultural Center, Alameda

With support from the California Arts Council, La Peña Cultural Center will play homage to the roots of Coastal Peru through the participation of American-born children of Peruvian immigrants. Huaranguito proposes a cultural project, bilingual, but filled with Peruvian Pride, within a framework of traditional song, dance and music that is truly authentic.

LI-15-00171

Merced County Arts Council, Inc., Merced

With support from the California Arts Council, VSArts of Merced County will provide a professional teacher in the area of dance/movement therapy in order to showcase abilities of those with disabilities to the community as a whole, thus enriching our society. In addition, we wish to expand this successful program of 19 years to include a performance at Valley Children's Hospital in Madera to inspire those patients to succeed in their therapeutic endeavors .

LI-15-00166

Modesto Sound, Stanislaus

With support from the California Arts Council, Modesto Sound will serve 80-110 students, in scholarships for these programs:

Five Audio Technician I courses

Establish Advanced Recording Workshop

One Summer Camp program

Establish 9 week courses for the School of Recording Arts and Music

Ages 8-12 (1 hour per week)

Ages 13 and up (1 1/2 hours per week)

Give LI scholarships to those below the state poverty income level, and use our scholarship as well.

The Job Circle (continue at no cost to the LI program)

LI-15-00204

Morongo Basin Cultural Arts Council, Inc, San Bernardino

With support from the California Arts Council, the Morongo Basin Cultural Arts Council will sponsor the 15th Annual Hwy 62 Open Studio Art Tours, which is facilitated entirely by volunteer arts council members. The Hwy 62 Open Studio Art Tours program is an opportunity for the public to get an inside look at working artist studios and meet directly with the artists to gain an in-depth understanding of their creative process in a variety of mediums.

LI-15-00136

Mozart Festival Association, San Luis Obispo

With support from the California Arts Council, Festival Mozaic will expand its free offerings during its summer festival, so any community member can enjoy world-class classical music. Free events will be held at venues throughout the county and will range from intimate chamber music to full orchestral performances. Local students will also learn from festival artists at master classes. Grant funds will be used to cover artist and music director fees, staff costs and outreach production costs.

LI-15-00202

New World Youth Ballet, Sonoma

With support from the California Arts Council, New World Ballet will, provide classes in Hip Hop, Ballet, and Modern dance to at-risk children of underserved communities, schools, parks & rec, and collaborations with other organizations in need of this service.

LI-15-00167

Oaktown Jazz Workshops, Alameda

With support from the California Arts Council, Oaktown Jazz Workshops will offer Bay Area youth ages 10-18 the following:

100 instrumental ensemble workshops, offered year-round, twice weekly, for a total of 200 hours of instruction.

20 Jazz Improvisation classes, offered in two 10-week sessions for a total of 30 hours of instruction.

Community Performances (minimum of 12 per year).

Jazz Encounters (clinics with special guest musicians, minimum 4 per year).

LI-15-00116

Pacific Pearl Music Association, Ventura

With support from the California Arts Council, Westlake Village Symphony will have secure funding to pay our conductor and concertmaster regularly for their work, two positions that are essential for an orchestra. This grant will enable a big step toward improving the artistic level of the orchestra, which we cannot do if relying on uncertain donations. We will be able to reach out to underserved communities to deliver many more free performances.

LI-15-00091

Paso Robles Youth Arts Foundation, San Luis Obispo

With support from the California Arts Council, Paso Robles Youth Arts Foundation will serve nearly 1500 students in 2016, from 5-18 years old, with free visual and performing arts classes. Many of our students come from low income immigrant families that cannot afford private art, dance, theater or music lessons. Grant funds will be used to offset expenses for materials and payroll specifically related to our popular Art and Drama Classes. In this way, students can enroll at no charge.

LI-15-00107

Pro Arts, Alameda

With the support from the California Arts Council, Pro Arts will partner once again with Satellite Affordable Housing Associates (SAHA) to create and implement three on-site Satellite Artist Residencies. These residencies enable artists from diverse communities to create arts engagement experiences for low-income, ethnically-diverse residents at affordable housing facilities in downtown Oakland. Local Impacts funds will be used for artist commissioning fees and related production expenses.

LI-15-00079

Rize All, Sacramento

With support from the California Arts Council, Rize All will provide a safe environment where there are opportunities to develop skill and appreciation in performing arts, gain values that encourage success through collaboration, and reinforce learning from school, teach movement arts, social skills, and encourage good citizenship. We aim to build amazing dancers who are more prepared to succeed in life through their passions and in turn positively affect the community and the world.

LI-15-00187

Shafter Symphony Orchestra, Kern

With support from the California Arts Council, the Shafter Symphony Orchestra will produce a chamber orchestra concert. This will allow us to be both physically and artistically closer to our audience and connect with them in a more intimate way. We have had great success in connecting with our audiences and this opportunity would allow us to enhance their understanding and enjoyment of music.

LI-15-00044

Shasta County Community Concert Association, Shasta

With support from the California Arts Council Shasta Community Concert Association will continue offering free morning educational concerts for schools in the area surrounding Redding. These programs will introduce students to professional performers who will encourage students toward success while providing an entertaining live concert. Grant funding will supplement the cost of these programs.

LI-15-00147

SINERGIA Theatre Group/Grupo de Teatro SINERGIA, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, Grupo de Teatro SINERGIA will fund the artists' payment and production expenses of A QUESTION OF GENDER, a bilingual (English/Spanish) play exploring the issues on societal integration of a transgender youth. Gloria, an immigrant youth feels isolated in her school. Lacking social support or friends, she latches onto a sympathetic boy and believes to found love in him. Their relationship turns deadly when the boy finds out Gloria is transgender.

LI-15-00179

SlingShot, Alpha art forum, Santa Barbara of Santa Barbara

Alpha Resource Center

With support for the California Arts Council, SlingShot will participate with community partners and create a collaborative project with a local professional artist in order to create opportunities for artists with disabilities to be visible in the community, and erode barriers to participation in the arts for people with intellectual disabilities and community members, thus creating greater acceptance, inclusion and respect for people with disabilities.

LI-15-00182

The Lab, San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, The Lab will present Unstoppable Feat, The Dances of Ed Mock, Brontez Purnell's media, performance and archive project exploring the late San Francisco postmodern choreographer Ed Mock. The project includes a dance film premiere, movement workshops, community-generated archiving, and public performances exploring an under-documented gay black choreographer during Purnell's 10-week residency January – March 2017.

LI-15-00156

The MARZ Project, Humboldt

Ink People Inc.

With support from the California Arts Council, the MARZ Project will provide a safe, creative environment where at-risk youth engage 1-on-1 with artist mentors to create digital media expressing their own unique stories and perspectives culminating in an all ages public performance including music production, graphics, and video. Grant funds will be used to pay mentors, provide traditional art supplies, and support the MARZ Music Show costs, such as venue rental and materials distribution.

LI-15-00102

Tools For Tomorrow Inc, Riverside

With support from the California Arts Council, Tools For Tomorrow will extend its after school arts education opportunity to 100 additional underserved youth by implementing two new full-year programs, one at Palm View Elementary in Coachella, and the other at Mecca Elementary in Mecca. These schools have NO arts education opportunities in their regular curricula, and after school programs such as Tools For Tomorrow are the only opportunity these children have to learn about the arts.

LI-15-00192

Trajectory, Humboldt

Ink People Center for the Arts

With support from the California Arts Council, Trajectory will bring The Body Discourse Project Tour into schools and settings such as day programs, community centers, parks and mental health facilities. The Body Discourse Project was developed 3 years ago, and with the instrumental support from the California Arts Council in 2015-16, it was expanded and focused into a polished performance piece that explores the experiences of living in a body and challenges the ability/disability continuum.

LI-15-00050

Triton Museum of Art, Santa Clara

With support from the California Arts Council, the Triton Museum of Art will offer three one-day studio workshops to students in grades 6-12. The workshops will be offered free of charge to participants, and the museum's target audience will be low-income and at-risk youth. These workshops provide students with a unique opportunity to receive focused instruction from various professional artists/art educators while exploring a wide range of media and techniques.

LI-15-00076

Visalia Arts Consortium, Tulare

The artistic team will present a progressive cumbia walk. Patrons will experience the historical development of cumbia through vignettes performed at six different venues in the developing Visalia Arts District. A narrator will lead the audience to each location within walking distance, creating a storyline to weave together the performances at each venue. Food and art connected to the stories will be provided. The last venue will host a culmination concert for patrons to talk and dance.

LI-15-00129

Vivace Youth Chorus of San Jose, Santa Clara

With support from the California Arts Council, Vivace Youth Chorus will provide youth ages 4-18 a quality musical education in an engaging and safe afterschool program that celebrates its participants, their families, and the broader community. This support will fund our East San Jose program, providing youth the opportunity to find community, creativity, and a voice. Vivace will enable children to grow both as musicians and citizens and embrace the diverse culture around them.

LI-15-00230

Women's Center for Creative Work, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, Women's Center for Creative Work will expand the infrastructure and programming of our Feminist Library on Wheels (F.L.O.W.) We will implement monthly literature and poetry events in public and community spaces over the course of six months, with the goal of expanding F.L.O.W.'s geographic reach and audience, bringing a range of feminist programming to diverse audiences.

LI-15-00111

Yuba-Sutter Regional Arts Council, Yuba/Sutter

With support from the California Arts Council, Yuba Sutter Arts (YSA) will commission 5 large exterior wall murals in the underserved City of Live Oak. YSA will use the commissioning and implementation process to engage residents and encourage participation, particularly among the young. Our murals and the artistic process will express the rich history of the City, together with its rural backdrop and its diverse, deep and abiding cultural heritage. We will call our project Murals of Live Oak.

Re: Veterans Initiative in the Arts Funding Recommendations, FY 2015-2016

Staff Recommendation

Staff requests approval of panel recommendations to fund 33 Veterans Initiative in the Arts (VIA) applicants ranking 5 and above for project and partnership support in the amount of $300,268.

2015-16 VIA Funding Requests and Panel Recommendations

A four-member Peer Review Panel convened from April 25-26, 2016 to review VIA applications according to the stated review criteria in the published FY15-16 VIA guidelines. The panel reviewed 35 applications requesting a total of $339,022. The total cumulative request falls slightly under the original program allocation of $350,000. Based on the panel's recommendations, staff recommends funding 33 VIA grant applications ranked 5 or higher at a percentage of their request amount based on their ranking.

Applicants ranking 5 or higher are recommended for funding due to the intense need for services among this specialized target population, the high potential for impact, and to cultivate interest in a developing area of grantmaking. Applications ranked below a 5 demonstrated only limited impact on and/or reach to the veteran community. These applicants will be encouraged to review the panel notes and apply again in the future. The remaining $49,732 from the original allocation of $350,000 for VIA will be reallocated to other grant programs, in keeping with past practice.

VIA Panel Representative

The VIA panel will be represented by Steve Dilley. Steve is a ceramicist and faculty at Saddleback College, one of three host locations for Veterans Art Project, which has offered hundreds of classes and supported Veteran Artists through exhibits, and financial scholarships. His research into nontraditional treatments for Post-Traumatic Stress symptoms and an unfulfilled personal need to help returning military personnel motivated Steve to start the Veterans Art Project.

VIA Grant Program Overview

VIA is rooted in the CAC's desire to address the needs and improve the lives of California's veterans through the arts. VIA provides project and partnership support for nonprofit arts organizations, local arts agencies, and veteran's assistance agencies to reach veterans, active military, and their families. Recommended Projects address one or more of the following goals:

- Encourage and support arts learning by, and/or the artistic expression of, veterans.

- Contribute to public understanding of and appreciation for the diverse range of veterans' experiences.
- Provide greater access to the arts for veterans, active military, and their families by reducing barriers to arts participation.
- Explore innovative strategies for new or increased participation.
- Implement artist residencies in places and in a manner which effectively engages veterans in the process of artistic creation.
- Increase partnerships between arts organizations and veteran's assistance agencies.

After a successful pilot year in FY14-15 with CAC State-Local Partners (SLPs), VIA eligibility was expanded to include the following in FY15-16:

- California-based nonprofit arts organization or local arts agency with a history of arts programming for a minimum of three years prior to the time of application.
- Veteran's assistance agencies: either a local unit of government or a California-based nonprofit organization with a history of arts programming for a minimum of three years prior to the time of application, and a primary mission of providing assistance to veterans and/or their families. These agencies were allowed to include, but were not limited to the following:
 - Veterans Service Organizations, Vet Centers, local veterans commissions, veterans housing and medical facilities, and homeless and disabled veterans support agencies.

VIA Applicant Statistics

35 applications were received from 19 counties, and recommended projects are in 18 counties. Although the applicant pool was of a relatively modest size, recommended applications represent broad geographic coverage of the state; from the furthest northwest corner, to central, coastal, and southern-most parts of the state. Of the 33 applicant organizations recommended for funding, 7 serve Los Angeles, 2 serve San Francisco, and 8 serve San Diego. The significant proportion of recommended applications in San Diego is not surprising, given the large concentration of active military and veterans in the county.

29 arts organizations, including 12 State-Local Partners are recommended for funding. 4 applications came from veterans assistance agencies; all of these organizations are recommended for funding. Through partnerships identified in the recommended applications, approximately 90 organizations will be involved in delivering arts programs and services to veterans and their families across the state through the VIA program.

Recommended proposals include direct participation by local veterans in creative expression through workshops and exhibitions or performances, arts enrichment activities, technical theater and digital media production, and public art design, planning, and installation. Artistic disciplines include the visual arts (drawing, painting, photography, pottery, sculpture, blacksmithing, jewelry making); literary arts (creative writing and poetry); theater; instrumental music; storytelling, digital media, and dance.

2015-16 Veterans Initiative in the Arts
Project Summaries

RECOMMENDED FOR FUNDING

VIA-15-00027

Arts Collaborative of Nevada County, Nevada

With support from the California Arts Council, NCArts will expand our successful Image-Nation project, uniting veterans and communities through a traveling Poetry/Photography Exhibition that highlights the relationship and the responsibility society has with returning warriors. Through workshops taught by master photographers and poets, veterans safely learn the skills to tell their story in a powerful way that benefits themselves, other veterans, and the larger community.

VIA-15-00005

Arts Orange County, Orange

With support from the California Arts Council, Arts Orange County will offer two free theatre workshops for veterans conducted by the Chance Theater in collaboration with Veterans First in Santa Ana in 2016-17. Participating veterans will talk about their experiences--before, during and after their military service--and their stories will be shaped into two one-hour theatre pieces they will perform publicly free of charge at the Chance Theater in Anaheim and at the new Heroes Hall veterans museum at the OC Fair in Costa Mesa.

VIA-15-00016

Combat Arts San Diego, San Diego

With support from the California Arts Council, Combat Arts San Diego will bring together post-911 combat veterans with the Clairemont neighborhood of San Diego for the development, creation, and installation of a Veteran Mural Project mural. Re: Professional Development & Consulting (PDC) Funding
Recommendations, FY 2015-2016

Staff Recommendation

Staff requests approval of panel recommendations to fund 122 PDC applicants for professional development and consulting support for a total of $328,500.

2015-16 PDC Funding Requests and Panel Recommendations

A staff review panel convened on Friday, May 6, 2016, to rank PDC applications according to the stated review criteria in the published PDC 2015-16 guidelines. The three-member panel reviewed a total of 168 PDC grant applications requesting a total of $454,145.

The panel utilized a two-point ranking system, ranking each application as “fund” or “not fund,” consistent with our current planning grant and professional development categories in other CAC grant programs.

Applicants ranked “not fund” did not meet the review criteria in a strong way, or they were deemed ineligible based on factors such as organizational ineligibility (non-arts organizations or organizations without 3-year history) or activity ineligibility (applying for ineligible activities such as out-of-state travel or activities with fundraising as the primary purpose).

Based on the panel’s rankings, and in accordance with past practice, staff recommends funding 122 PDC grant applications ranked “fund” at the full request amount. This recommendation exceeds the original budget allocation of $300,000 for this program by $28,500, but can be accommodated by utilizing a portion of unused grant funding. Note: In this second year of the PDC program, the Council’s investment increased from a $100,000 allocation in FY 2014-15.

PDC Staff Panel

The PDC staff panel consisted of Ayanna Kiburi, Deputy Director; Shelly Gilbride, Programs Officer; and Caitlin Fitzwater, Communications Director. By conducting a staff panel, the Council utilizes the extensive professional expertise of staff and allows for a streamlined panel process appropriate for a program in which the maximum grant requests are relatively low. As a reminder for Council, the staff panel review model is considered best practice among state arts agencies conducting similar professional development/consulting grant programs.

PDC Grant Program Overview

The PDC program was inaugurated in 2014-15. Its development was inspired by feedback received during the CAC's 2013 statewide listening tour and ongoing feedback from the field, urging more capacity building and technical support for nonprofit arts organizations.

The Professional Development and Consulting (PDC) program assists arts organizations in building their capacity for success in two areas:

Professional Development: Funding will support professional growth and leadership training opportunities for individual staff members, artists, arts administrators or arts educators employed by the applying organization. Professional development activities could include:

- Tuition or registration fees for in-state conferences, seminars and workshops
- In-State travel expenses for conferences, seminars or workshops
- Fees to work directly with consultants and career coaches

Consulting Services: Funding will support the hiring of consultants to work with staff to enhance the programmatic, administrative, financial or technical capabilities of the applying organization. Consultant activities could include the assessment of, recommendations for and training related to:

- Financial or strategic planning
- Audience development or marketing
- Information technology
- Program evaluation
- Board or staff development
- Website

Grant requests are made for up to $750 in the professional development category and $3,000 in the consulting category.

Caitlin Fitzwater joined the California Arts Council as Communications Director in 2013. She is a 2013 graduate of the executive arts leadership fellowship program at the DeVos Institute of Arts Management led by Michael Kaiser at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. – a competitive executive training program for mid-career arts managers. In New York City, Caitlin served as the marketing manager for New York Public Radio and all its brands, including the Jerome L. Greene Performance Space, WNYC Radio, and Classical WQXR Radio. She developed marketing campaigns for nationally beloved public radio programs including Radiolab, Studio 360, and Here's the Thing with Alec Baldwin. Previously, she was marketing manager for the Public Theater, overseeing promotional efforts for projects ranging from Shakespeare in the Park and Public Theater mainstage productions, to the Under the Radar Festival of new theater and Shakespeare education initiatives. Caitlin began her career in New York as marketing associate for the award-winning nonprofit theater Playwrights Horizons, and also served in the audience development department of Centerstage Theater in Baltimore, Maryland.

Shelly Gilbride was named Program Officer of the California Arts Council in July 2015. In this position, she oversees all of the agency's grant programs and serves as an executive leader in many of the Arts Council's key activities. From July 2014 to July 2015, Shelly served as an Arts Program Specialist at the California Arts Council, coordinating the agency's arts education programs and initiatives, and serving as the co-coordinator for the Poetry Out Loud program. She serves as a key liaison to the statewide arts education coalition, CREATE CA, of which the California Arts Council is a founding partner. Shelly holds a PhD in Performance Studies from UC Davis. She recently served on the board of the Davis Arts Center and as a lecturer at UC Davis. As a Development professional in Northern California, New York City and Philadelphia, Shelly helped many artists and organizations secure funding and develop their institutional and creative capacity. Shelly began her career as a Haas Acting Fellow at The Walnut Street Theatre in Philadelphia and performed in numerous regional theatre productions as well as in the Philadelphia and Edinburgh Fringe Festivals.

Ayanna L. Kiburi joined the California Arts Council as Deputy Director in February 2016. She was previously at the Office of AIDS at the California Department of Public Health where she served as Branch Chief for the HIV Care Branch for more than six years. In that role she oversaw four statewide health programs and managed multiple funding streams from both State and Federal sources. Prior to her work with the California Department of Public Health, Ayanna held a variety of health care related positions in both the public and nonprofit sectors, including Program Director for the National African American Tobacco Education Network and Every Woman Counts programs of the Health Education Council, and Professional Education Specialist with the Cancer Detection Section (CDS) Professional Education Unit for the University of California, San Francisco. Kiburi holds a master's degree in public health from San Jose State University and bachelor's degrees in Sociology and African-American Studies from UC Davis. Ayanna is a member of Authentic Voices, a Sacramento-based reader's theater designed to stimulate authentic dialogue on inherent equality through personal life experiences and perceptions. Kiburi was a member of the Black Repertoire Dance Troupe of UC Davis, Yemaya Dance Troupe, and Ebo Okokan of Sacramento.

PDC GRANTS - Recommended for Funding

PDC-15-00205

A Noise Within, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, A Noise Within (ANW) will retain the services of a consultant to conduct a formal evaluation of its Classics Live! education program which introduces more than 15,000 students to classical theatre each year. The evaluation will include both process and outcome components, allowing ANW to better understand both how to best serve students and to more clearly communicate the benefits of the program to funders and other supporters.

PDC-15-00020

A Reason To Survive, San Diego

With support from the California Arts Council, A Reason to Survive (ARTS) will hire Mission Edge, to assess ARTS operational infrastructure and provide recommendations for best practices in two specific areas: Financial Planning and HR administration/processes. The assessment shall be integrated with ARTS strategic plan currently being finalized. It will include both short-term and long-term recommendations for operational sustainability.

PDC-15-00006

About Productions, Inc., Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, About...Productions will hire Judith Teitelman to guide the 27-year old Los Angeles-based theater and arts education company through a 6-month long strategic planning process. Judith has over 30 years of experience consulting with small, mid, and large organizations to strengthen their management and resource generating capacities, and effectively plan for the future.

PDC-15-00028

African-American Historical & Cultural Museum of the San Joaquin Valley, Fresno

With support from the California Arts Council, the African American Historical & Cultural of the San Joaquin Valley Museum will use funds towards the visioning and efforts of the museum. We need to let the community what we stand for and why we matter. This has not been completed since the inception of the organization decades ago, and are place in the community has evolved. An outside independent consultant will be able to facilitate this discussion among the board and community leaders.

PDC-15-00030

AfroSolo Theatre Company, San Francisco

Cultural Odyssey

With support from the California Arts Council, AfroSolo Theatre Company will engage Consultant Ted Russell to work closely with the organization's founder/artistic director and advisory board members to help determine the vision and initial steps for an organizational process that results in a map leading to AfroSolo's destination: a sustainable nonprofit capable of serving its community over the long term.

PDC-15-00063

Armory Center for the Arts, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, the Armory Center for the Arts will work with consultant Liza Auciello, PsyD, Founding Executive Director of A Thousand Joys (an organization providing trauma-related stress management to high-risk children and families), to deliver a series of six 2-hour trainings in trauma informed care to the Armory's faculty of Teaching Artists and administrators.

PDC-15-00112

ArtReach, San Diego

With the support from the California Arts Council, ArtReach will work with Jason Farran of JF Web Design to reconfigure and optimize the ArtReach website using Wordpress. Wordpress allows users to update information without intermediaries. Jason will work with the ArtReach team to build a secure and user-friendly site, and then provide in-depth training in order for the ArtReach team to become proficient in Wordpress operations and self-sufficient updating the website.

PDC-15-00200

Arts & Learning Corporation, Orange

With support from the California Arts Council, Arts & Learning Conservatory will use its grant funds to retain the services of Phil Rapa, an accomplished speaker, author, and management consultant. During his tenure with the University of Southern California, his innovative best practices in fund development, executive education, and management development helped raise millions of dollars for the University. Phil is a generalist who focuses on the field of board development.

PDC-15-00059

Arts & Services for Disabled, Los Angeles

With Support from the California Arts Council, Arts & Services for Disabled will hire a branding company that will help us create a comprehensive nonprofit rebranding/brand refresh to improve our ability to tell our story after 35 years of delivering the highest quality programming for the intellectually disabled community and the people who love them.

PDC-15-00032

Arts Connection With support from the California Arts Council, Arts Connection will hire the Academy for Grassroots Organizations to help build the capacity of our Board. The Board of Directors consists of mostly new members, with the majority having joined within the last year. Our Directors are enthusiastic, however most are also new at serving on a nonprofit board of directors. Due to limited staff, our organization is in need of active and impactful participation by our board.

PDC-15-00018

Arts Council Santa Cruz County, Santa Cruz

With support from the California Arts Council, Arts Council Santa Cruz County will develop a new 2017-2020 three-year strategic plan. This will build on our highly successful 2013-16 plan by refining goals, creating a thoughtful strategy for responding to new opportunities, and providing a lens through which we will evaluate all of our programs to ensure they are highly effective, addressing clear community needs, and being professionally delivered in the spirit of community service.

PDC-15-00192

Ashkenaz Music & Dance Community Center, Alameda

With support from the California Arts Council, Ashkenaz will work with a brand-design consultant to develop brand imaging that reflects our renewed efforts to reinvigorate our brand as a multi-ethnic Music and Dance Cultural Center and our communications strategy of emphasizing multi-cultural music and dance programs. This is our opportunity to reinvigorate the mission and create engaging communications to draw larger, more diverse audiences and funders with impactful cultural programming.

PDC-15-00214

Asian Pacific Islander Cultural Center, San Francisco

With the support of the California Arts Council APICC will work alongside with Kevin Seaman to evaluate APICC's current commissioning program and to create a plan to better meet the needs of our artists. Since 1996, APICC has provided artists fees / commissions to artists participating in the United States of Asian America Festival. We've learned, however, that some artists need more assistance than just cash. Artists have expressed needs in fundraising, marketing and production support.

PDC-15-00102

Aurora Theatre Company, Alameda

With support from the California Arts Council, Aurora Theatre Company's Annual Fund Manager Katherine Lee will increase her knowledge of and skills in graphic design. Aurora's Graphic Designer works part time and is often not able to design materials for all donor communications; therefore Katherine is frequently tasked with designing invitations, eblasts, and other collateral. Specifically, we would like to offer Katherine some training in Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop.

PDC-15-00086

AXIS Dance Company, Alameda

AXIS Dance Company is celebrating a 30th anniversary during our 2017-18 season. Now is the time to upgrade our media and public relations capability for such a milestone. With the help of our consultant, we will organize a media relations function, effectively pitch our work to local and national media, and build broader awareness for our past and current work. Strong media relations, marketing strategies and an expanded press list will cultivate viable new leads for our 30th anniversary campaign.

PDC-15-00180

Balet Afsaneh Art & Culture Society, Marin

With support from the California Arts Council, Ballet Afsaneh Art & Culture Society will work with a professional accounting consultant to upgrade and reconfigure vital features of our nonprofit accounting/bookkeeping system, and train our organization's team members in its use.

PDC-15-00056

Bay Area Video Coalition, San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, Bay Area Video Coalition will hire a consultant with whom we've successfully collaborated in the past in order to train every staff member in effective project management. Project management training is the one universally requested professional development training from all of BAVC's staff members. This training will ensure that the organization is working efficiently and effectively across programs and departments.

PDC-15-00202

Bay Area Youth Arts, Alameda County

Bantaba Dance Ensemble

With support from the California Arts Council, Bay Area Youth Arts (BAYA) will utilize professional consulting services to build capacity in three functional infrastructure areas: a) organizational administration, b) strategic planning, and c) volunteer development. Consulting services will assess the strengths, gaps, and opportunities, build a strategic sustainability and growth plan, and train the new generation of parent volunteers and administrative support technicians.

PDC-15-00038

Better Youth, Inc., Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council, Better Youth will benefit from the opportunity to work with a consultant to strengthen programs, curriculum, data evaluation and the technology infrastructure of the organization. Better Youth's most critical needs are program evaluation, curriculum development, understanding our aggregate data to support program outcomes/impact and to automate our systems using available web-based technology to help us operate more efficiently.

PDC-15-00126

Betti Ono With support from the California Arts Council, Betti Ono will be able to develop a critical long-term plan, greatly improve Board and stakeholder engagement, and form a cogent strategic plan for the organization.

PDC-15-00116

Brava! for Women in the Arts, San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, Brava will hire a consultant to work with our Board, Executive Director, and staff to create a comprehensive strategic plan for the organization in 2017-2021. The plan will focus on developing a stronger Board of Directors, fund development, and executive leadership succession.

PDC-15-00111

California LGBT Arts Alliance, Los Angeles

With support from the California Arts Council the California LGBT Arts Alliance will support the housing and travel expenses of the Alliance's Executive Director Greg Day who will attend the first-ever National Queer Arts Summit in Oakland in August 2016. The conference will bring together arts presenters and LGBT artists to explore strategies that will improve the financial condition of LGBT performing artists by enabling them to conduct successful statewide and national touring.

PDC-15-00132

Canyon Cinema Foundation, San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, Canyon Cinema Foundation (CCF) will engage a consultant experienced in media arts non-profit management to develop its first strategic plan. The challenges facing CCF in today's dynamic media environment are unlike any other time in independent media distribution. Operating with limited resources and staffing, CCF needs to create a sustainable plan to achieve its goals in order to effectively serve its constituency and meet the terms of its mission.

PDC-15-00170

Center for New Music San Francisco, Inc., San Francisco

With support from the California Arts Council, the Center for New Music will engage consultants with expertise in Salesforce to design and implement an audience development workflow. This effort will build upon the diverse programming that takes place at the Center for New Music's facility in San Francisco's Tenderloin District to support the evaluation, integration, and growth of the new music community.

PDC-15-00167

Circo Zero, San Francisco

CounterPulse

With support from the California Arts Council, Circo Zero will hire a consultant to engage in a process of capacity building and strategic development. The consultant will conduct an audit of organizational operations, review current and potential revenue sources to increase non-project based income, create a roadmap to diversify and stabilize sources of income, and conduct a performance review one year after the process begins.

PDC-15-00125

City of Davis, Yolo

With support from the California Arts Council, the City of Davis Arts & Cultural Affairs Program will contract the services of Jay Lopez of GiantPop to design and develop a website to support the efforts of our community Arts Alliance, a group of dedicated individuals representing arts and civic organizations, economic development strategists, and community members. The website will support efforts to encourage collaboration, promote the Arts, and advocate for the arts in the Davis community.

PDC-15-00178

City of El Cerrito, Contra Costa

With support from the California Arts Council, the City of El Cerrito will engage Nancy Gonchar to provide 1:1 coaching services to the City's public art administrator, Suzanne Iarla. Ms. Gonchar will share information & best practices for government public art programs including both private & public funding sources; the RFP process to commission public art; the mechanisms for evaluating submittals; identify resources & also help Ms. Iarla network with other Bay Area public arts professionals.

PDC-15-00171

City of Walnut Creek, Contra Costa

With support from the California Arts Council, Civic Arts Education will hire experienced arts consultants Vanessa Whang and Sylvia Sherman to create a plan for strengthening our music programming. While many community arts centers make music a centerpiece of programming, music at CAE serves less than 10% of our student population, with a slate of programs that lacks cohesion, sequentiality and relevance to all. Sherman and Whang will support a clear vision and goals that increase engagement.

PDC-15-00120

Collage Dance Theatre With support from the California Arts Council, Heidi Duckler Dance Theatre will hire a consultant to work with the company's Board, staff and stakeholders to develop a new strategic plan for 2018-2020.

Re: Artists in Schools Funding Recommendation, FY 2016-17

Staff Recommendation

Staff requests approval of panel recommendations to fund 141 Student Engagement grants ranking 5 and above, 22 Professional Development grants, and 2 Planning grants, totaling $1,309,448 in allocation to the Artists in Schools program for teaching artist residencies in school settings.

2016-17 Artists in Schools Funding Requests and Panel Recommendations

Two five-member peer review panels convened during the month of April to adjudicate a combined 162 applications to the Artists in Schools program according to the stated review criteria in the published AIS 2016-17 guidelines. 5 of these applications were for Planning grants, 1 was for a stand-alone Professional Development grant, 121 were for Student Engagement grants (formerly the Artists in Schools grant), and 35 were for combined Student Engagement and Professional Development grants. The total request to the program was for $1,847,162, approximately 53% above the initial program allocation of $1,210,917.

The panels adjudicated the Student Engagement applications according to the approved ranking rubric, scoring 83 applications as “good” (a score of 5-7), 53 applications as “excellent” (a score of 8-9), and 5 programs as “model” (a score of 10). Overall, the panels ranked 90% of the applications as good or better, with only 10% ranked as “marginal” (a score of 2-4). At this funding level, approximately 90% of the applicants will be funded which is consistent with FY 2015-16 funding. The total funding recommendation of $1,309,448 increases the program allocation by approximately 8%.

For Professional Development and Planning grants, the panel utilized a two-point ranking system, evaluating each application on the stated review criteria and ranking it “fund” or “not fund,” consistent with our current planning grant and professional development categories in other CAC grant programs. The panels supported the funding of 2 of 5 Planning grants and 22 of 36 Professional Development grants, equaling a combined funding recommendation of $58,005.

Artists in Schools Panel Representative

The Artists in Schools panel will be represented by Miko Lee. Miko is ED of Youth in Arts and on the Advisory Committee of Teaching Artists Guild. She was a member of the Advisory Panel for the NEA’s Professional Development for Arts Education. As Director of Art and Public Education at East Bay Center for the Performing Arts, she designed Learning Without Borders, a CAC Demo Model and recipient of 3 U.S. DOE awards. Miko has presented at conferences around the country and has written a number of academically linked arts curricula, currently being replicated at sites throughout the Bay Area. Miko has an extensive background in theatre.

Artists in Schools Grant Program Overview

The Artists in Schools (AIS) program is the CAC’s signature arts education grant program and is one of the CAC’s longest running programs. AIS grant supports projects that integrate community arts resources—artists and professional art organizations—into comprehensive, standards-based arts-learning at school sites. Long-term, in-depth arts education projects during school hours or in after-school programs underscore the critical role the arts play in the students' development of creativity, overall well-being and academic achievement.

In response to feedback from the field about the need for professional development and co-learning opportunities for teaching artists and classroom teachers, Council added a professional development grant category this year. The response to this new addition has been extremely positive, with 35 organizations submitting proposals for professional development projects alongside their student engagement projects. The many successful applications (61% of the total submitted) will facilitate ongoing engagement between classroom teachers and teaching artists, extending the impact of arts education more broadly across the curriculum.

AIS Applicant Statistics

162 applications were received from 30 different counties, representing all of California’s eight regions; recommended projects come from 27 counties and seven regions (see full geographic analytics in table below).

Region	% of Applicants	% Recommended
Los Angeles-Orange County	30	31
San Francisco County	15	15
Greater Bay Area	28	29
San Diego-Imperial County	10	8
Upstate California	5	5
Central Coast	4	5
Capital Region	4	3
Central Valley	2	3
Inland Empire	1	0

The disciplinary diversity of grantee organizations is particularly compelling. Arts Education programs typically focus heavily on music and the visual arts, while theatre and dance remain underutilized in the classroom. While this year’s grantees include a robust number of both music (38/26%) and visual art (25/17%) programs, both dance and theatre are also well represented (27/19% and 26/18% respectively). Furthermore, 9 programs that focus on Literary Arts will be funded, as will 2 in Media Arts, and an additional 17 that offer programs in multiple disciplines.

Overall, this year's AIS grants will allow 144 arts organizations to hire 580 teaching artists that will serve a total of more than 43,000 students in 323 schools across California.

PLANNING GRANTS - Recommended for Funding

AIS-16-00159

Ali Akbar College of Music, Marin

N/A

To pilot our residency program, AACM will look for three schools (elementary, middle, high school) with robust music programs directed by teachers with existing working relationships with our teaching artists. We will also look for a diversity of programs and instruments (orchestra, concert bands, jazz, world music, general music/Orff). All of the artists (bios attached) are senior students, performers, and teachers of Indian Classical music with extensive experience teaching Indian music to youth. Our goal is to take the time in 2016/17 to plan successful pilot residencies for 2017/18 that could be expanded in 2018/2019 when we will be looking for ways to replicate our programs in less resourced schools.

AIS-16-00208

Music at the Mission, Alameda

N/A

Music at the Mission will bring the art form of chamber music to students. Three musicians will work with music students to create chamber groups in the artist residency. The outcome will be an AIS Plan that is realistic, implementable and have buy-in from the District, the teacher and the musicians. This planning process will forge new connections among the District, school, teachers and musicians. The AIS Plan will lead to CAC funding of an artist residency.

PLANNING GRANTS - Not Recommended for Funding

AIS-16-00052

Pasadena Playhouse State Theatre of California, Inc., Los Angeles

N/A

The Pasadena Playhouse will conduct eight meetings that include observations, brainstorming, training, and program development, and devise a plan to implement a sequential Teaching Artist residency at McKinley as part of the Student Matinee Program.

AIS-16-00062

Shasta County Arts Council, Shasta

N/A

With support from the California Arts Council, the Shasta County Arts Council will facilitate the development and implementation of Artists in Schools Residency Programs to augment school-based arts programs at the three comprehensive high schools (Shasta, Enterprise and Foothill) in the Shasta Union High School District. The majority of grant funds would be used to engage students, primarily, and school staff, secondarily, in the planning and creation of campus-specific projects.

AIS-16-00072

San Diego Winds, San Diego

N/A

The desired outcome with this planning grant is to develop and test lessons. By partnering with one school we will be able to develop instruction and test it to ensure effectiveness. The funding will be used to compensate musicians and educators for their time and expertise in developing quality, sequential, standards based lessons which will help students learn about their instrument and music broadly. The artists are all professional musicians of the San Diego Winds as well as the San Diego Symphony, Pacific Symphony and San Diego State University Faculty.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT GRANTS - Recommended for Funding

AIS-16-00180

Alonzo King LINES Ballet, San Francisco

N/A

Professional Development efforts for Alonzo King LINES Community Programs in the 2016-17 school year will be broken into two activities: a Teaching Artists training and a training for educators at participating schools. Currently, HeART with LINES Teaching Artists receive training in four Professional Development workshops per year. In 2016-17, this will be increased to a two-hour workshop per month, with nine total workshops between September 2016 and May 2017.

AIS-16-00015

Armory Center for the Arts, Los Angeles

N/A

The Artful Connections with Math professional development model provides each classroom teacher with 24 hours of in-class program modeling and coaching by a trained Armory Teaching Artist. In addition, each classroom teacher will participate in four 90-minute trainings in arts integration, lesson modeling, and debriefing with Lorraine Cleary Dale, Armory Director of Education, and participating Armory Teaching Artists. Following this intensive and sustained course of professional development, participating teachers will have the ability and confidence to implement arts integration strategies as part of their regular teaching practice.

AIS-16-00172

Arts Council of Mendocino County, Mendocino

N/A

Located in an isolated rural area with a history of poor internet access, many PA teachers resist technology and few realize the power it offers them in the classroom. We will offer 7-12 grade teachers a multi-lesson program for integrating creative writing, video and audio into their classrooms. This proven multi-session lesson plan has yielded deep expression and evocative art from even the most reluctant high school student (lesson plans available upon request). Teachers will learn to teach the lesson, as well as experience it themselves, albeit faster, helping them to embrace the creativity aspect offered when integrating curriculum and arts technology.

AIS-16-00059

Arts Council Santa Cruz County, Santa Cruz

N/A

The Summer Arts Institute (SAI) is a powerful professional development program spearheaded by Arts Council Santa Cruz County. Attending this Institute is a prerequisite for classroom teacher/school site participation in the Artist Teacher Partnership arts integration program, since it lays the foundation for understanding of integration and the collaboration that must occur between teaching artist and lead classroom teacher. During the SAI, classroom teachers, arts specialists, and administrators are able to engage in the various arts disciplines (visual, music, dance, drama), and acquire tools and first-hand experience in the artistic process. There is also a coaching component to this program, designed to harness the developing skills of classroom teachers as well as establish sustainability for the arts within the school.

AIS-16-00174

Attitudinal Healing Connection, Alameda

N/A

WOLP will provide professional development for teaching artists to train them in arts integration with STEM for the development of project-based learning curriculum, with an emphasis on collaborating with local arts-based businesses. The 16 hours of training will educate them on the current curriculum and give them a space to brainstorm ways to enhance it and share best arts engagement practices. The training will cultivate an ethos of creativity and critical pedagogy by sharing reflections, experiences, skills and techniques amongst seasoned and new teaching artists.

AIS-16-00024

Cantare Con Vivo, Alameda

N/A

Cantare Con Vivo seeks to strengthen our capacity to provide choral music instruction tailored for the learning needs of students with developmental disabilities. Through this project, our Music Education Director and Teaching Artists will improve their ability to teach music in in-school settings, both in isolated special needs classes and in classes where special needs and non-special needs students are taught concurrently.

AIS-16-00061

East Bay Center for the Performing Arts, Contra Costa

N/A

This is a professional development program in arts integration strategies to support Common Core instruction as a core part of a collaborative initiative between East Bay Center for the Performing Arts and Edward M. Downer Elementary in San Pablo, CA. The core outcome of the professional development program is to increase the capacity, skill, confidence and leadership of participating classroom teachers to integrate arts with core subject areas. To achieve this, the professional development activities will take place over one school year and include the following: three professional development workshops for the entire school site staff; collaborative planning time between all classroom teachers and Teaching Artist in designing arts integrated lessons; and 3 hours of modeled arts integration lessons in all classrooms with Teaching Artists.

AIS-16-00090

Friends of Olympia Station, Santa Cruz

N/A

At each school, we give 2 workshops to the elementary school faculty. We plan one for the first 2 weeks of the residency and one for the midterm. For the residency we make it a stipulation that there is this component in order to deepen the arc of arts learning. We articulate the learning objective for the entire school faculty-not just those in our arts classrooms- so all have an overview of the DATW program and can incorporate integrated lessons with writing and researching about world cultures. We include a "passport" template for whole school, to encourage seeking knowledge of the world (maps, food, music, heritage, language). Workshops open to interested staff, aides and parents.

Luna Kids Dance, Inc., Alameda

Luna's PD provides multiple opportunities for artists, teachers and administrators to co-learn as they improve teaching practice and bring dance to students. The learning objectives are to increase classroom teacher (CT) understanding and comfort with standards-based dance ; increase teaching artist (TA) understanding of child development and instruction practice; and support the TA and CT collaboration through dance pedagogy that is multi-cultural, creative, constructivist and honors human development.

AIS-16-00056

Mariposa County Arts Council, Inc., Mariposa

The Mariposa County Arts Council's (MCACI), in partnership with the Mariposa County Office of Education (MCOE), currently has a residency program in all 5th grade classrooms in Mariposa that integrates arts learning with standards-based curriculum in the fields of sculpture, painting, photography and graphic design. In addition to providing integrated art experiences for students, the program also builds capacity in teachers to integrate the arts into their curriculum through an instructional approach known as graduated release. This method begins with the artist-educators providing 100% of the instruction, graduates to a co-teaching model with the teacher joining at previously determined points in the lesson, and culminates in the classroom teacher leading instruction while the artist-educator moves into a coaching role. The aim of this component is to empower classroom teachers to continue integrating art into their instruction once the teaching artists leave.

The professional development project has two primary components. The first of these components is the development of 30 additional model lesson plans integrating VAPA standards and Common Core standards for the 4th grade. The overall, multi-year plan for this project is to incorporate an additional grade level each year until a model visual arts curriculum is achieved in grades K-5. The Student Engagement grant resources will subsidize the piloting of these lessons for the new grade level at participating schools, while the schools themselves will absorb 100% of the costs to maintain the curriculum at the grade levels for which the model lessons have already been developed. The second component of the project is intended to increase the reach of these model lessons. Through this component, the model lessons will be made available online to Nevada County teachers (via the Nevada County Arts and County Superintendent of Schools websites), and multiple workshops will be offered to county teachers to train them in how best to implement these lessons. Given the limited breadth (a maximum of 4 school sites), this portion of the Professional Development Project will disseminate the model lessons to other classroom teachers and teaching artists, hopefully expanding their impact to a significant extent.

Professional development for teaching artists and classroom teachers is essential to maintaining CK's excellence and impact. CK professional development includes preliminary classroom observation by the teaching artists (2 hours), in order to assess the students and gauge which art projects will be the most appropriate. The observation is accompanied by planning sessions (2 hours) between each team (one artist/two teachers) in which they jointly develop a curriculum addressing key content areas, assessment, and VAPA and Common Core Standards. Throughout program implementation (October-March), additional professional development sessions (totaling 5 hours) are delivered by the Art Center's education staff and outside specialists to the Art Center's faculty of ten teaching artists, and participating classroom teachers. As CK is a robust program that utilizes all faculty on a rotating basis, all faculty are included in these trainings. These sessions focus on utilizing best practices in teaching strategies.

Re: Poetry Out Loud Guidelines

Staff requests authority to do the following: 1) to fine-tune and publish FY 16-17 Poetry Out Loud guidelines in consultation with the Programs Committee, and 2) to amend the FY 16-17 SLP guidelines to include Poetry Out Loud for those SLPs that choose to manage a POL program (see Tab 23 for amended SLP Guidelines).

Background

Poetry Out Loud is a nation-wide poetry recitation program that operates in schools in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Last year, more than 30,000 students participated in California alone. The California Arts Council (CAC) acts as the official State Poetry Out Loud Coordinator in California, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts.

Considerations

In 2016, 39 of California's 58 counties participated in Poetry Out Loud. As the program has grown and evolved over its 11-year history in our state, the CAC has cultivated partnerships of various kinds in order to facilitate the program in counties with discrepant sets of resources and capacities. The vast majority of our county partners are our State-Local Partners (25 of 39), but we also currently partner with non-profit arts organizations and County Offices of Education. While flexibility was key in the early years of program development, more consistency and structure are now necessary in order to expand Poetry Out Loud to include all 58 counties.

Our State-Local Partners offer consistent and reliable partnerships available for this program. Since we already interact with the SLPs as a cohort in dealing with county-level arts programming, engaging them as our POL partners provides the most seamless and easily scalable model for reaching all 58 counties. Currently 25 out of our 40 POL programs are managed by SLPS. Staff is currently exploring the possibility of integrating POL into the SLP program in coming years, replicating the NEA model, in which the federal agency partners with state arts agencies in all 50 states to implement the program.

Recommendations

In the upcoming grant cycle (2017), we plan to include the POL grant within the body of our SLP application and allocation. For those SLPs that are already managing the program in their counties, or those that wish to onboard a POL program in the coming year, they will answer a brief set of questions regarding POL within their SLP grant application. Their grant agreement and funding will encompass both programs.

For those current partners that are not SLPs, they will be asked to submit a brief application articulating a project plan, committed school partners, and anticipated county competition date. As this is intended to be a program facilitation grant, rather than a competitive grant, the application for non-SLP partners will be by invitation only.

Office Hours

8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Monday through Friday

Purpose: The California Arts Council (CAC), a state agency, was established in January 1976 to encourage artistic awareness, participation, and expression; to help independent local groups develop their own arts programs; to promote employment of artists and those skilled in crafts in the public and private sector; and to enlist the aid of all state agencies in the task of ensuring the fullest expression of our artistic potential.

The Council: The appointed Council of the CAC consists of 11 members who serve staggered terms. The Governor appoints nine members, the assembly Speaker appoints one member, and the Senate President pro Tempore appoints one member. Council members serve without salary, elect their own officers, and meet throughout the state to encourage public attendance. This body sets policy and has final approval of CAC grants.

Mission: To advance California through the arts and creativity.

Funding: The CAC is a state agency, funded from the state's annual budget process and proceeds from the California Arts License Plate and the Keep Arts in Schools tax return voluntary contribution fund, supplemented by funds from the National Endowment for the Arts. Its grants are usually matched by foundations, individuals, earned income, government agencies, or other organizations.

Information Access: Due to the Public Records and Open Meeting Acts, applications and their attachments are not confidential and may be requested by the media and/or public. Observers may attend but may not participate in, or in any way interfere with, Council meetings. Meeting dates and locations are posted at www.arts.ca.gov. Each meeting provides a designated time for public comment, although comments may be time-limited.

Grants Panels: Applications are evaluated by panels of experts, recognized in their respective fields, who rank applications according to program criteria. The CAC staff provides information but not recommendations to the panel. The Council reviews panel recommendations before making final funding decisions.

Appeal Process: Appeals to CAC funding decisions must be submitted on an official Appeal Form, available from the CAC, and postmarked within 45 days of the decision. Appeals are granted only on the following grounds:

1. Panel's assessment was based on a misstatement of factual information as contained in the application such that it negatively influenced the panel's recommendation; and/or
2. Incorrect processing of the required application material such that it negatively influenced the panel's assessment of the applicant's request for funding.

Note: Dissatisfaction with award denial or with award amount is not grounds for appeal.

Requirements: The CAC is mandated both by federal and state regulations to fund only organizations that have proof of nonprofit status under sec. 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code (Fiscal Receivers are eligible in some programs), or under sec. 23701d of the California Revenue and Taxations Code, or entities that are a unit of government; and that comply with the Civil Rights Acts of 1964, as amended; sec. 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended; the Age Discrimination Act of 1975; the Drug-Free Workplace Act of 1988; California Government Code secs. 11135-11139.5 (barring discrimination); the Fair Labor Standards Act, as defined by the Secretary of Labor in part 505 of title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulation; the Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990 ("ADA"); the Fair Employment and Housing Act; and the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996.

Ownership, Copyrights, Royalties, Credit: The CAC does not claim ownership, copyrights, royalties, or other claim to artwork produced as a result of a CAC grant. However, the CAC reserves the right to reproduce and use such material for official, noncommercial purpose, including but not limited to use on the CAC website, social media and print materials. In addition, the CAC requires documentation of grants activity, and appropriate credit for CAC partial support.

POETRY OUT LOUD

2016-2017 GRANT GUIDELINES

DEADLINE: September 30, 2016, 5:00 PM

Apply online at arts.ca.gov

Background

Poetry Out Loud is a nation-wide poetry recitation program that operates in schools in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Last year, more than 30,000 students participated in California alone. Founded by former National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) chairman, now California Poet Laureate Dana Gioia, Poetry Out Loud cultivates a love of poetry in our nation's youth, simultaneously providing a platform for students to experience the possibilities for self-expression and actualization intrinsic to live performance.

Poetry Out Loud begins in the classroom via a well-structured and accessible curriculum that can be implemented using portions of class time in as little as 2-3 weeks. Students compete at school-wide championships, and the winners move on to compete in county competitions. The county champions travel to Sacramento to take part in the two-day State Finals competition. The winner of the State Finals attends the National Finals in Washington D.C.

The California Arts Council (CAC) is the official State Poetry Out Loud Coordinator in California.

Purpose and Funding Amounts

Poetry Out Loud grants provide for the coordination of program implementation on the county level by Partner Agencies. Grant funds are to be used for the following purposes:

- Coordination: $1,500 of the grant is to be used to compensate staff labor in planning and executing the Poetry Out Loud program at schools around the county. Please see the section below on "Project Requirements" for an overview of these responsibilities.
- Coaching and Teacher Training: Beginning this year, all POL grantees will receive $800 for coaching and training purposes. These funds may be used to retain a POL Poet Teacher to coach students and to assist classroom teachers in implementing the program, or for professional development of classroom teachers in order to expand the number of participating schools.
- Travel Stipend: The final portion of the grant, the amount of which is determined by the CAC based on the Partner Agency's proximity to Sacramento, subsidizes travel costs to and from the State Finals Competition for the county champion and his or her chaperone.

CAC funds may not be used for hospitality or food costs, out-of-state travel activities, or expenses incurred before the start or after the end of the program period.

Matching Funds:

Matching funds are not required for any part of this grant during FY 2016-17. While a match is not required, the CAC encourages grantees to identify additional revenue streams to support POL activities whenever possible.

Applicant Eligibility

- The applicant organization must be a California-based nonprofit arts organization, a local arts agency with a history of arts programming for a minimum of three years prior to the time of application, or a unit of government.
- The arts organization must be in California.
- The arts organization must be a nonprofit arts organization, and must demonstrate proof of nonprofit status under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, or section 23701d of the California Revenue and Taxation Code, or must be a unit of government.
- Fiscal sponsors are not permitted under the terms of this grant agreement.
- Applicants to this program are not restricted from applying to and receiving funding from competitive CAC grant programs as long as those funds support distinctly different projects or activities.

Project Requirements

The following are the required responsibilities of the grantee in the coordination of the Poetry Out Loud (POL) program within their county.

- Publicize the availability of the POL program throughout county.
- Serve as liaison to Lead Teachers and facilitate the registration of participating schools.
- If Partner Agency will be working with Poet Teachers, serve as liaison between Lead Teachers and Poet Teachers, providing support for Poet Teacher participation; and accept Poet Teacher invoices and provide payment in full.
- Facilitate classroom and school participation through the distribution and implementation of curriculum materials.
- Provide support for the planning and monitoring of school-wide competitions.
- Coordinate and produce a County Finals competition, to take place on or before February 15, 2017, providing County Finals results to CAC.
- Include CAC on communications with County Champion and their Chaperone regarding preparation and logistics for State Finals participation.
- Disperse transportation stipend to the County Champion and their Chaperone and assist as needed with travel arrangements to and from the State Finals competition.
- Provide general marketing and publicity support for POL.
- Use CAC and NEA logos on all printed, electronic materials, and websites (programs, catalogs, postcards, posters, newsletter, leaflets, publications, etc.) that specifically reference POL.
- Pursue additional financial support (from individuals, foundations, corporations etc.) for project implementation and travel arrangements for County Champion, as needed.
- Submit CAC/NEA survey and POL Final Evaluation no later than 30 days after the end of program completion.

Application Process

A link to the brief, two-page application is available on our website (<http://arts.ca.gov>). In addition to standard applicant information, the application requests the following:

- Confirmation from a minimum of two participating schools in the county, including information on the lead POL teachers at those sites
- Dates for school and countywide competitions, to take place no later than February 15, 2017
- Indication of planned use of Coaching and Training funds

Review Criteria and Application Evaluation

Unlike our competitive grant programs, the intention of this application is not to rank applications but rather to ensure the commitment of county partners and school sites well in advance of program implementation. Applications will be reviewed by CAC staff for completion and assessed as to the ability of the organization to execute the program as planned. It is our goal to award a grant to one organization in each of California's 58 counties.

California Arts Council Decision-making

The final authority for grant decisions is the appointed Council. Subsequent to receiving and reviewing the peer panel's recommendations, the Council will take into consideration the panel's recommendations and make final funding decisions at a public meeting.

If approved by the Council for support, grant amounts may differ from the request amount due to the level of funding available to the program, demand for that funding, and/or the rank a proposal receives from the review panel.

Should a grant award be made for an amount less than the request amount, the applicant will be required to confirm that the goals of the original request can be met or modified with a lesser grant award.

STATE-LOCAL PARTNERSHIP

2016-2017 GRANT GUIDELINES
DEADLINE: July 27, 2016, 5:00 PM
Apply at cac.culturegrants.org

Background

The State-Local Partnership program provides grant opportunities for general operating support and technical assistance for county-designated local arts agencies.

Purpose

The purpose of the State-Local Partnership (SLP) program is to foster cultural development on the local level through a partnership between the State and the counties of California. The Partnership is established between the California Arts Council (CAC) and the State's local arts agencies. The nature of this partnership includes funding, information exchange, cooperative activities, and leadership to stimulate and enable individuals, organizations, and communities to create, present, and preserve the arts of all cultures to enrich the quality of life for all Californians.

A local arts agency is defined as a nonprofit organization, or an agency of city or county government, officially designated to provide financial support, services, or other programs to a variety of arts organizations, individual artists, and the community as a whole.

The goals of the State-Local Partnership program are:

- To increase public awareness and participation in the arts of all cultures.
- To broaden public and private support for the arts.
- To serve the diverse cultural needs of California's local communities.
- To encourage and promote arts in education.
- To foster local and regional partnership and collaboration.

New this year: SLPs serving as a Poetry Out Loud (POL) Partner Agency and implementing POL program throughout their county will receive additional coordination support through their SLP grant standard agreement. For more information, see ADDENDUM: State-Local Partners and Poetry Out Loud Implementation below, and the complete "2016-17 CAC POL Guidelines" available at www.arts.ca.gov.

Eligible Funding and Request Amount

The California Arts Council allocated $1,400,000 to the SLP program in 2016-17 and expects the allocation to remain stable in 2017. The recommended core SLP request amount is $30,000. SLP grant requests cannot exceed an organization's total income based on its last completed budget.

POL Partner Agencies: SLPs implementing POL in their county will indicate their request for additional POL coordination within the SLP online application.

Matching Funds

Matching funds for the core SLP request, at a level of 1:1, are mandatory. The required match may be from any public or private source. In some instances, in-kind donated services for which a market value can be determined may be used for up to 50% of the required match. State funds cannot be used as a match.

POL Partner Agencies: Matching funds are not required for any portion of the POL grant. While a match for POL support is not required, POL Partner Agencies encouraged to identify additional revenue streams to support POL activities wherever possible.

Applicant Eligibility

- Applicant organization must be designated by resolution of their county board of supervisors to serve as the local partner.
- Applicant organization must meet the legal eligibility requirements of all California Arts Council program(s) grantees listed under Requirements on page 2.
- Organizational programs must be accessible to the general public.
- Applicants must complete a California Cultural Data Project Funder Report at the time of application.
- Applicants to this program are not restricted from applying for, and receiving funding from, other CAC grant programs as long as those funds are used for different purposes.
- Matching funds requirement for this program must be met.

It is recommended that the state-local partners maintain a public office accessible during normal business hours and staffed by, at minimum, a part-time director/professional administrator. In unique situations, exceptions can be made.

Regional Partnerships: Regional partnerships that serve multiple counties may be eligible to apply. Funding is prorated based on the number of counties in the partnership. Regional partnerships may include a legal merger of two or more partner agencies or a consortium of applicants. Regional partner applicants must give evidence of service and program equity to all participating counties.

Cities: Currently two cities, Los Angeles and San Diego, due to their population size, participate in the State-Local Partnership program. Additional cities are not eligible to apply. New applicants must serve a county or a partnership of counties.

Grantee Responsibilities

Funding for general operating support is awarded as a contract for services between the local partner and the California Arts Council. Local partners must:

- Attend CAC gatherings.

- Host meetings for the CAC as needed, without charge, when sufficient notice has been given.
- Participate, where feasible, in cooperative information gathering and programming when deemed to be mutually beneficial by both the CAC and the County Partner.

POL Partner Agencies: SLPs implementing POL in their counties are responsible for following POL Project Requirements and completing all Scope of Work duties, as provided at the beginning of the POL cycle.

Application Process

CAC Culture Grants is our online portal for the grant application and review process. CAC does not accept applications through any other means for this program. To apply, new applicants must sign up for a user account to access the CAC Culture Grants system, while returning applicants will log in with an existing user account. Detailed instructions and support can be found at www.arts.ca.gov and via the portal at <https://cac.culturegrants.org>.

For FY16-17, SLPs are not required to serve as a POL Partner Agency; lack of participation in POL will have no effect on the competitiveness of your application, as it pertains to the following SLP Review Criteria.

Review Criteria

A peer review panel will evaluate applications based on the following criteria:

Local Arts Networking and Facilitation: Degree to which the organization serves as a resource in the development of local cultural activities; serves as a link between individuals, organizations, businesses, and government; provides technical assistance to constituency; and supports arts and cultural policy and planning.

Access, Equity and Community Engagement: Extent to which the organization promotes and fosters the artistic and cultural diversity of the community; ensures access and equity in the development and participation of quality arts programs and activities; recognizes and includes the entire geography of a county and embraces community members of all income levels, cultural backgrounds and people with disabilities; and encourages and promotes arts education projects.

Fiscal Leadership and Management: Organization is able to demonstrate a diversity of income from both public and private sources; adequate artistic and administrative staff; appropriate levels of staff compensation with strong opportunities for staff development; effective governance policies and structure; a governing body that is representative of the community and diverse in professional skills; and ongoing strategic planning and implementation.

Peer Panel Evaluation and Ranking Process

A peer panel will review all applications and work samples in a multi-step process that involves assigning numerical ranks to an application. A 10-point ranking system will be implemented.

Panelists' ranks are averaged to obtain the final score.

10-Point Numerical Ranking System

10	Model	Meets all of the review criteria to the highest degree possible.
8-9	Excellent	Designates an applicant as a high priority for funding.
5-6-7	Good	Strongly meets the review criteria; however, some improvement or development is needed.
2-3-4	Developing	Has merit, but does not meet the criteria in a strong or solid way.
1	Ineligible	Inappropriate for CAC support.

California Arts Council Decision-making

The final authority for grant decisions is the appointed Council. Subsequent to receiving and reviewing the peer panel's recommendations, the Council will take into consideration the panel's recommendations and make final funding decisions at a public meeting.

If approved by the Council for support, grant amounts may differ from the request amount due to the level of funding available to the program, demand for that funding, and/or the rank a proposal receives from the peer review panel.

Should a grant award be made for an amount less than the request amount, the applicant will be required to confirm that the goals of the original request can be met or modified with a lesser grant award.

What the CAC Does Not Fund

- Former grantee organizations not in compliance with CAC grant requirements (as stipulated in grant agreement)
- Non-arts organizations not involved in arts activities (as applicants)
- For-profit organizations (as applicants)
- Projects with fundraising purposes, including grant writing
- Other state or federal agencies
- Programs not accessible to the public
- Projects with religious or sectarian purposes
- Organizations or activities that are part of the curricula base of schools, colleges, or universities
- Indirect costs of schools, colleges, or universities
- Trust or endowment funds
- Purchase of equipment, land, buildings, or construction (capital outlay or expenditures)
- Out-of-state travel activities

- Hospitality or food costs
- Expenses incurred before the start or after the ending date of the grant

Late September	Funding notifications
October 1, 2016 – September 30, 2017	Funded activity period

Grantee Requirements

- To better inform our elected representatives as to the value of the arts and the use of state funds, you will be expected to include--with your approved grant--copies of signed letters sent to the Governor and your State Senate and Assembly representatives thanking them for this grant.
- Use CAC and National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) logos on all printed, electronic materials, and websites (programs, catalogs, postcards, posters, newsletters, leaflets, publications, etc.) that specifically reference this grant.
- Credit the CAC and the NEA on all printed and electronic materials: “This activity is funded in part by the California Arts Council, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.”
- When discussing programs supported by this grant, verbal credit must be given.
- A Final Report summarizing SLP grant-funded activities grant accomplishments will be required at the end of the grant period.
- POL Partner Agencies: SLPs implementing a POL program will be required to complete a separate POL Final Report at the conclusion of the POL program.

SLP Staff Assistance

CAC staff is available on a limited basis to offer guidance and clarification in preparing your proposal. We recommend that you contact staff well in advance of the deadline to ensure you can be accommodated. Contact Jason Jong, SLP Program Manager at jason.jong@arts.ca.gov or (916) 322-6338.

ADDENDUM: State-Local Partners and Poetry Out Loud Implementation

This information is not to be used in lieu of thoroughly reviewing “2016-17 CAC POL Guidelines” available at www.arts.ca.gov.

SLPs implementing POL in their county will receive an additional POL coordination award of $2,300, plus a Travel Stipend for the county champion and their chaperone to travel to and from State Finals Competition, in an amount based on their geographic distance to Sacramento.

Purpose and Funding Amounts

Poetry Out Loud grants provide for the coordination of program implementation on the county level by Partner Agencies. Grant funds are to be used for the following purposes:

- Coordination: $1,500 of the grant is to be used to compensate staff labor in planning and executing the Poetry Out Loud program at schools around the county. Please see the section below on “Project Requirements” for an overview of these responsibilities.
- Coaching and Teacher Training: Beginning this year, all POL grantees will receive $800 for coaching and training purposes. These funds may be used to retain a POL Poet Teacher to coach students and to assist classroom teachers in implementing the program, or for professional development of classroom teachers in order to expand the number of participating schools.
- Travel Stipend: The final portion of the grant, the amount of which is determined by the CAC based on the Partner Agency’s proximity to Sacramento, subsidizes travel costs to and from the State Finals Competition for the county champion and his or her chaperone.

Project Requirements

The following are the required responsibilities of the grantee in the coordination of the Poetry Out Loud (POL) program within their county.

- Publicize the availability of the POL program throughout county.
- Serve as liaison to Lead Teachers and facilitate the registration of participating schools.
- If Partner Agency will be working with Poet Teachers, serve as liaison between Lead Teachers and Poet Teachers, providing support for Poet Teacher participation; and accept Poet Teacher invoices and provide payment in full.
- Facilitate classroom and school participation through the distribution and implementation of curriculum materials.
- Provide support for the planning and monitoring of school-wide competitions.
- Coordinate and produce a County Finals competition, to take place on or before February 15, 2017, providing County Finals results to CAC.
- Include CAC on communications with County Champion and their Chaperone regarding preparation and logistics for State Finals participation.
- Disperse transportation stipend to the County Champion and their Chaperone and assist as needed with travel arrangements to and from the State Finals competition.
- Provide general marketing and publicity support for POL.
- Use CAC and NEA logos on all printed, electronic materials, and websites (programs, catalogs, postcards, posters, newsletter, leaflets, publications, etc.) that specifically reference POL.
- Pursue additional financial support (from individuals, foundations, corporations etc.) for project implementation and travel arrangements for County Champion, as needed.

- Submit CAC/NEA survey and POL Final Evaluation no later than 30 days after the end of program completion.

Application Process

A link to the brief, two-page application is available on our website (<http://arts.ca.gov>). In addition to standard applicant information, the application requests the following:

- Confirmation from a minimum of two participating schools in the county, including information on the lead POL teachers at those sites
- Dates for school and countywide competitions, to take place no later than February 15, 2017
- Indication of planned use of Coaching and Training funds

POL Timeline
